

Contents

Abbreviations	xiii
1. Introduction: The British Empire and Empire Migration, 1815 to the 1960s	1
2. Crossing the Atlantic: Migrants and Settlers in Canada	11
UK migrants and settlement patterns	12
Sponsors' motives	16
The hopes and means of migrants	21
Warnings and controversies	26
Identities	32
Conclusions	38
3. Land of Perpetual Summer: Australian Experiences	41
Convicts as settlers	43
Pioneer pastoralists	48
Free and assisted migration, 1830–1914	50
From Empire settlement to Australian immigration: twentieth-century schemes	56
Settlers and the unsettled	62
Identities old and new	68
Conclusions	72
4. Sheep and Sunshine: New Zealand	75
Immigration: political and constitutional contexts	77
Ends and means	84
Images and realities	93
Identities	102
Conclusions	107
5. Africa South of the Sahara	111
Migration and settlement in West, East, and Central Africa	113
Politics and settlement in southern Africa, 1815–1910	122
Politics and settlement in South Africa after the Union	131
Mines and migrants in southern Africa	136

White settler identities and ideologies in Africa	140
Conclusions	144
6. Exile into Bondage? Non-White Migrants and Settlers	148
Indentured labour and plantation economies	149
The free labour market	156
Controversies: indentured and free labour in the plantation colonies	159
‘Whites only’: the politics of immigration control in the empire of settlement	170
Conclusions: comparisons and identities	176
7. Immigration and the Heart of Empire	180
Immigrant origins	182
Mechanisms, networks, and settlement patterns	191
The legislative framework: freedom and control	196
Attitudes and experiences	199
Responses and identities	206
Conclusions	208
8. A Civilizing Influence? The Female Migrant	212
Motives, marital status, and occupations	215
Encouraging the exodus: the role of sponsorship	223
Colonial perspectives	229
Conflicting agendas	233
Migrant experiences	238
Conclusions: evaluating women’s migration	244
9. Children of the Poor: Child and Juvenile Migration	247
Roots and practitioners	250
Publicity, funding, and accountability	257
The child problem and the empire solution	261
Experiences	268
Criticisms and conclusions	272
10. The Emigration Business	277
Entrepreneurs and migrant recruitment	277
Philanthropists and trade unions	282
Settlers and the colonial state	284
The imperial government and the dispatch of settlers	290

Agents	294
Transport	298
Conclusions	304
11. The Homecoming Migrant	306
Making money and returning home	308
Family circumstances and homesickness	314
Assisted returns and deportations	319
Back home: pleasures and pains	324
Homecoming as tourism	333
Conclusions	336
12. Afterword: The Politics of Migration and the End of Empire	338
Bibliography	350
Index	359