

Contents

Preface	9
Introduction	13

PART ONE

Those Irrepressible Puritans: The Legacy of Puritanism

From Father to Son: The Evolution of Typology in Puritan New England	19
The Language of Salem Witchcraft	37
The Puritan Roots of American Whig Rhetoric	49
The Dove and the Serpent: The Clergy in the American Revolution	67
“Saints” and “Strangers” – America’s Chiliastic Dualism	83
Those Irrepressible Puritans: Canon War Survivors	97

PART TWO

Aesthetic Headaches:

Art and Politics in the Work of Herman Melville and Mark Twain

Aesthetic Headaches: Politics and Art in the American Novel	115
Art, Religion, and the Problem of Authority in Melville’s Pierre	131
“Wandering To-and-Fro” – Melville and Religion	145
Melville’s Redburn : Lessons in Alterity and Textual Limits	173
Dressing to Impress in Melville’s Typee	193
Race and Money in Pudd’nhead Wilson	205
“Bait-and-Switch”: Adventures of Huckleberry Finn	223

PART THREE

Writing Literary History and the Problem of Aesthetics

Writing a History of American Literature at the End of the Twentieth Century or Mission Impossible	243
New Literary History: Past and Present	259
“General Introduction” to the Columbia Literary History of the United States	269
The Culture Wars and the Revenge of the Aesthetic	277

PART FOUR

Diversity and Transnationalism in American Literature

The Emergence of the Literatures of the United States	293
Diversity in the United States and Abroad: What Does It Mean When American Studies Is Transnational?	313
Terror, Aesthetics, and the Humanities in the Public Sphere	335