

Contents

Preface vii

PART ONE Foundations

CHAPTER 1

Why Do Research? 1

Alternatives to Social Science Research	2
What Research Involves: A Scientific Approach	8
Varieties of Social Research	16
Steps in the Research Process	17
Why Learn How to Conduct Social Research?	22
Conclusion	23

CHAPTER 2

What Are the Major Types of Social Research? 25

Use and Audience of Research	26
Purpose of Research	37
Within or Across Cases	40
Single or Multiple Points in Time	44
Data Collection Techniques	46
Conclusion	53

CHAPTER 3

Theory and Research 55

What Is Theory?	57
-----------------	----

Social Theory versus Ideology	58
The Parts of Social Theory	61
Conclusion	88

CHAPTER 4

The Meanings of Methodology 90

Philosophical Foundations	91
The Three Approaches	93
Positivist Social Science	95
Interpretive Social Science	101
Critical Social Science	108
Feminist and Postmodern Research	115
Conclusion	118

CHAPTER 5

How to Review the Literature Review and Conduct Ethical Studies 123

The Literature Review	124
Ethics in Social Research	143
Conclusion	160

PART TWO

Planning and Preparation

CHAPTER 6

Strategies of Research Design 163

Triangulation	164
Qualitative and Quantitative Orientations Toward Research	165
Qualitative Design Issues	174
Quantitative Design Issues	178
Conclusion	193

CHAPTER 7

Qualitative and Quantitative Measurement 198

The Need for Measurement	199
Quantitative and Qualitative Measurement	200

The Measurement Process	201
Reliability and Validity	207
A Guide to Quantitative Measurement	217
Scales and Indexes	222
Conclusion	237

CHAPTER 8

Qualitative and Quantitative Sampling 240

Reasons for Sampling	240
Sampling Strategies	242
Conclusion	271

PART THREE

Quantitative Data Collection and Analysis

CHAPTER 9

Experimental Research 275

Appropriate Technique	276
A Short History of the Experiment	278
Random Assignment	281
Experimental Design Logic	284
Internal and External Validity	292
Practical Considerations	302
Results of Experimental Research: Making Comparisons	304
A Word on Ethics	304
Conclusion	304

CHAPTER 10

Survey Research 308

A History of Survey Research	309
------------------------------	-----

The Logic of Survey Research	311
Construction of the Questionnaire	313
Types of Surveys: Advantages and Disadvantages	337
Survey Interviewing	341
The Ethical Survey	351
Conclusion	352

CHAPTER 11

Nonreactive Research and Secondary Analysis 358

Nonreactive Research	359
Content Analysis	361
Existing Statistics/Documents	368
Secondary Analysis of Survey Data	374
Issues of Inference and Theory Testing	379

Ethical Concerns	380
Conclusion	380
CHAPTER 12
Analysis of Quantitative Data	383
Dealing with Data	383

Results with One Variable	386
Results with Two Variables	393
More than Two Variables	406
Inferential Statistics	412
Conclusion	416

PART FOUR

Qualitative Data Collection and Analysis

CHAPTER 13
Field Research and Focus Group Research	420
Understanding Field Research	421
The Field Research Interview	449
Data Quality	455
Ethical Dilemmas of Field Research	457
Focus Group Research	459
Conclusion	460

CHAPTER 14
Historical-Comparative Research	464
A Short History of Historical-Comparative Research	465
Research Questions Appropriate for Historical-Comparative Research	466
The Logic of Historical-Comparative Research	467

Steps in Conducting a Historical-Comparative Research Project	475
Data and Evidence in Historical Context	478
Comparative Research	486
Equivalence in Historical-Comparative Research	499
Ethics	502
Conclusion	503

CHAPTER 15
Analysis of Qualitative Data	507
Comparison of Methods of Data Analysis	508
Coding and Concept Formation	510
Analytic Strategies for Qualitative Data	517
Other Techniques	531
Conclusion	539

PART FIVE

Communicating with Others

CHAPTER 16
Writing the Research Report and the Politics of Social Research	542
The Research Report	543

The Politics of Social Research	557
Objectivity and Value Freedom	570
Conclusion	572

Appendix	575
Bibliography	577
Name Index	617
Subject Index	621