

Zeitschrift für Erziehungswissenschaft

14. Jahrgang · Sonderheft 13 · 2011

Inhaltsverzeichnis

I Editorial

- Ingrid Gogolin/Jürgen Baumert/Annette Scheunpflug*
“Transforming education”. Large-scale reform projects and their effects—German and International experience ..... 1

II Controversies on the effects of test-based accountability

- Daniel Koretz*
Lessons from test-based education reform in the U.S. .... 9
- Anton Béguin/Melanie Ehren*
Aspects of accountability and assessment in the Netherlands ..... 25
- Ludwig Stecher*
All-day School—Quo Vadis? Some remarks on the development of all-day schools in Germany ..... 37
- Gjert Langfeldt*
The rationality of large scale reforms: ‘Scandinavian neo-institutionalism’ as an example ..... 51
- Sverker Lindblad*
Turn taking in large-scale reforms: re-modelling welfare state education in Sweden ..... 67
- Pamela Sammons*
Improving schools and raising standards. The impact of standards based educational reforms in England ..... 83
- Peter Tymms*
Evidence? The impact of large-scale reform in England ..... 105

III Governance and its ethic and financial challenges

Norbert Maritzen

On the advantage and disadvantage of educational monitoring in a federal system . . . . . 117

Klaus Klemm

(Neue) Modelle der Steuerung: Bildungsfinanzierung . . . . . 137

IV Enhancing educational research quality

Andrew Pollard/Mary James

The UK's teaching and learning research programme (TLRP).

Strategies and contributions to large-scale reform . . . . . 149

Manfred Nießen

Building structures by research funding? DFG's programme in the field of empirical research in education . . . . . 161