

Table of contents

Section I: Emotion and Expression	9
Jacques Bos, Between physiognomy and pathognomy: theoretical perspectives on the representation of characters and emotions in the seventeenth century	11
Ulrich Heinen, Stoisch Sterben lernen – Rubens' Memorialbild auf Justus Lipsius und Philip Rubens	25
Bert Watteeuw, Een neus voor kunst. De Antwerpse liefhebber Jacomo de Cachiopin (1591/92 – 1659) en zijn collectie	69
Jan Dequeker, A physician's view beyond the curtains of seventeenth-century Flemish and Dutch baroque portraits	101
Section II: Stage and Performance	107
Rudie van Leeuwen, The portrait historié in religious context and its condemnation	109
Daantje Meuwissen, 'According to old custom'. The seventeenth-century portrait series depicting the land commanders of the Teutonic Order of Knights, Utrecht Bailiwick	125
Karolien De Clippel, Naked or not? Some thoughts on nudity and portraiture in seventeenth-century painting	141
Section III: Kinship and Recognition	163
Rudi Ekkart, De herontdekking van het portret van de familie Van Miereveld	165
Bert Timmermans, (Family) portraits in the construction of a visual family tree and a social identity. Anticipating the aspirations of elite clientele in seventeenth-century Antwerp	175
Ann Jensen Adams, The performative portrait historié	193

Section IV: Intimacy and Remembrance

215

Jeffrey Muller, 217

The importance of place in Pieter Thys's group portrait of the wardens of the Holy Sacrament Chapel in St. Jacob's Church, Antwerp

Zirká Z. Filipczak, 229

Portraits of women who 'do not keep strictly to the Masculine and Feminine Genders, as they call them'

Katlijne Van der Stighelen,
'Amoris et doloris monumentum'. Portraits and how they were perceived in the baroque age 249