

Contents

Preface	vii
Translator's Note	xv
Acknowledgments	xvi
1 Beginnings: What Do You Expect?	1
1 Beginning	1
2 Sense and Meaning	2
3 Rules of the Game	5
4 Links and Connections	10
5 I	14
6 First Sentences: Enticements	21
2 The Modern European Novel: Predecessors, Origins, Conventions, Sub-Genres	28
1 Dangers and Allurements of Novel-Reading:     What's Novel about the Novel?	28
2 Fact and Fiction: No Man is an Island	33
3 Fiction, Illusion, Realism	41
4 Variety of Types: Triumph of Polyphony	53
3 The Object of Every Analysis: The How of the What (Discourse and Story)	64
4 Time	76
1 Narrative Time and Narrated Time	76
2 Order	87
3 Frequency	91
4 Tense and Narrative	93
5 Characters	97
1 Character Conception	97
2 Character Portrayal	104

6	Teutonic Rosette or Gallic Taxonomy? Identifying the Narrative Situation	113
1	Prologue	113
2	Stanzel's Typological Circle: A Preliminary Overview	114
3	Splitting the In-dividual: The First-Person Narrative Situation	120
4	The Impossibility of the Familiar: The Authorial Narrative Situation	129
5	Abolishing Narrative in Narrative – the Illusion of Immediacy: The Figural Narrative Situation	143
6	Genette's Narrative Theory: The Basics	163
7	Who Speaks? – Voice	165
8	Who Perceives? – Focalization	170
9	Internal – External: Advantage Genette?	176
10	Coda	189
11	The Novel as Atonement	191
7	Multiperspectivity, Unreliability, and the Impossibility of Editing Out the Gender Aspect	197
1	Multiperspectivity	197
2	Unreliable Narration	206
3	The Narration's Gender	219
8	Now You See It, Now You Don't: Symbolism and Space	228
9	The End of the Novel and the Future of an Illusion	242
1	Experience, Storytelling, (Hi)stories	242
2	Meaning Orientation	250
3	Novels: Allegories of Telling	255
	References	262
	Further Reading	279
	Index of Authors and Critics	282