

Contents

List of contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	x
1 Introduction	1
2 General considerations	4
L.H. Klaassen and W.T.M. Molle
Introduction	4
Theory	5
A framework for measurement	10
Some examples of industrial characteristics and adjustment strategies	19
Mobility- and migration-determining factors	24
Model	28
Industrial migration and regional policy	30
Some conclusions	32
References	32
3 France	35
P. Aydalot
General aspects	35
The structure of industrial movement	43
Spatial patterns	52
Location factors and firm-location policies	64

The impact of movement on the regional and urban structure of France	81
The current situation and outlook	89
References	91
4 Federal Republic of Germany	94
F.J. Bade
Introduction	94
Methodological aspects of empirical investigations	102
Volume and patterns of industrial movement	107
Determinants of industrial movement	115
Regional effects of industrial movement	134
Outlook	140
References	141
5 Italy	146
R.P. Camagni
The spatial dimension of national growth (1951–80)	146
Inventory of empirical investigations	155
Long-distance industrial movement: the case of the Mezzogiorno	157
Short-distance industrial movement: the case of north-western Italy	172
Government policy on industrial movement	179
Conclusions and general outlook	182
References	185
6 Denmark	188
U. Christiansen
Introduction	188
The spatial and policy settings	188
Inventory of empirical investigations	195
Pattern of movement	199
Motives and decision processes	215
Effects on donor and acceptor regions	221
Outlook	222
References	225
7 Greece	231
G.A. Giannopoulos and M. Giaoutzis-Flytzanis
The structure of the Greek economy	232
The spatial structure of Greece	233
Investigations on regional development and industrial movement	236

The spatial distribution of manufacturing	239
Regional policy and industrial location	243
Motives and factors affecting industrial location and movement in Greece	246
Outlook	252
References	252
8 The Netherlands	254
W.T.M. Molle
The spatial and policy settings	255
Inventory of empirical investigations	262
Patterns of movement	269
Motives and decision process	285
Effects on donor and acceptor regions	290
Conclusions and outlook	297
References	298
9 Ireland	301
P.N. O'Farrell
Introduction	301
General setting	302
The international location decision	308
The location pattern within Ireland	313
The process of decision-making	336
Effects upon donor and acceptor regions	337
Outlook	345
References	348
10 United Kingdom	352
P.M. Townroe
Introduction	352
General setting	353
Factors in the choice of new industrial locations	368
Location decision-making in the firm	375
The impact of industrial movement on regional development	378
Outlook	380
References	384
11 Belgium	387
N. Vanhove
Introduction: available data	387
The spatial and policy setting	388
Patterns of movements in Flanders	393

Conclusions and outlook	402
References	403
12 Past experience and future prospects: A European synopsis	404
W. T.M. Molle and L.H. Klaassen
Introduction	404
Coverage and context	405
Patterns of movement	408
Motives, processes and strategies	411
Models	415
The consequences of industrial migration for the workers	420
Effects on donor and acceptor regions	421
Regional policy	422
Outlook	424
References	428