

Table of Contents

Preface	VII
1. Introduction: The Aims and Methods of This Study	1
1.1 'Webs of Significance' – A Novel Approach to Dionysius' Classicism	1
1.1.1 Dionysius' Classicism as a Cultural Phenomenon ..	1
1.1.2 Dionysius – an 'Augustan' Author?	8
1.1.3 A Cultural Identity Approach to Dionysius' Classicism	18
1.2 The Conceptual Framework of Dionysius' Classicism	29
1.2.1 Criticism as a Struggle for Authority	32
1.2.2 Dionysius' Critical Method as Heir to the Tradition of Classical Rhetoric	40
1.2.3 The Power of the Text: Creating a Discursive Tradition	44
1.2.4 Criticism as Constituent of Communities of Intellectuals	47
1.3 Conclusions	52
2. Reviving the Past: Language and Identity in Dionysius' Classicism	60
2.1 Introduction: Language and Time in Dionysius' Classicism	60
2.2 Φιλόσοφος 'Ρητορική, Μίμησις, and Continuity	65
2.2.1 Πολιτικοὶ Λόγοι: Learning Classical Identity from Isocrates	65
2.2.2 Classicist Self-Fashioning: Re-enacting the Past through Μίμησις	77

2.3	Language and Power: Getting the Romans into the Picture	92
2.3.1	Greeks, Romans, Barbarians: Dionysius' Interpretation of Augustan Rome	92
2.3.2	Dionysius' Interpretation of the Roman Present in Context	100
2.3.3	Greek or Roman? The Ambiguity of Dionysius' View of Augustan Rome	107
2.3.4	Coda: How Historical is Dionysius' Model of History?	110
2.4	Summary	116
3.	History and Criticism: The Construction of a Classicist Past	120
3.1	'Metahistory' avant la lettre : Dionysius on Historical Writing	121
3.2	Deconstructing Thucydides	130
3.2.1	Identifying with the Past: Why Herodotus Succeeded where Thucydides Failed	132
3.2.2	Classicist History: Theopompus' 'Isocratean' Approach to the Past	149
3.2.3	Between History and Criticism: Re-writing the Melian Dialogue	154
3.3	A Greek Past for the Roman Present: The Project of Dionysius' Antiquitates	165
3.3.1	Εὐθὺς ἐξ ἀρχῆς: The Archaeology of Roman Power	171
3.3.2	Identity and Difference: Be Roman, Go Greek?	198
3.4	Summary	223
4.	Knowledge and Elitism: Being a Classicist Critic	226
4.1	'Ανάγνωσις Τροφή Λέξεως: Reading and Distinction in Dionysius' Classicism	230
4.2	'Authentic Reading': Becoming a Classicist Critic	235
4.2.1	The Failures of Scholarship Past: Redressing the Balance between Theory and Practice	235
4.2.2	Misreading Tradition: Deconstructing Chrysippus	239
4.2.3	Refuting the Idea of a 'Natural Word Order'	243

4.2.4	On Literary Composition : A Normative Aesthetics of Classical Style	246
4.2.5	Dionysius' Writings: A Classical Course of Education	257
4.3	The Mysteries of Education: Being an Elite Critic	263
4.3.1	Knowledge and Elitism	264
4.3.2	The Mysteries of Knowledge	267
4.3.3	Classical Politicians and Classicist Readers: Knowledge and Leadership	270
4.4	Summary	277
5.	Enacting Distinction: The Interactive Structure of Dionysius' Writings	279
5.1	Criticism as Dialogic Interaction: Creating an 'Imagined Community' of Classicists	281
5.2	Strategies of Distinction: Out-Group Reading	297
5.2.1	'Objective Critic' vs 'Subjective Critic': The Peripatetic on Trial	303
5.2.2	The Aesthetics of Criticism: Dionysius vs the Platonists	310
5.3	Summary	348
6.	Conclusions	352
	References	361
	Indices	387
1.	Key Notions, Persons, Places	387
2.	Greek Terms	391
3.	Passages Discussed	392