Contents

Preface page xiii Acknowledgments xvii I Individuals Explaining Individual Behavior: The Problem-Solving Ι. Framework 3 1.1. Explanation of Individual Behavior as the First Analytical Step 3 1.2. Individual Behavior as Problem-Solving Activity 7 The Motivational Aspect: The Striving for Utility Increase 2. 10 2.1. Psychological Approaches to Motivation 10 2.2. General Motivation and Individual Behavior 12 The Cognitive Aspect: The Theory of Learning 16 3. 3.1. The Evolutionary Perspective 16 3.2. The Theory of Learning 22 3.3. Old and New Problems 34 The Choice Aspect 4. 43 4.1. Choice as a Reflection of Alternatives 43 4.2. Imagination and the Creativity of Choice 46 4.3. The Theory of Rational Choice 50 4.4. Beyond Homo oeconomicus and Homo sociologicus 54 4.5. Epilogue: Individual Problem Solving 59 II Institutions Shared Mental Models: Emergence and Evolution 5.0 65

È,	5.1. The Issue of Social Order and the state of the	65
	5.2. The Emergence of Shared Mental Models	67
	5.3. The Evolution of Shared Mental Models	69

Contents

	5.4. Cultural Evolution as Collective Learning?	73
6.	Explaining Institutions	83
	6.1. Institutions: Introduction	83
	6.2. Why Do Institutions Exist?	85
	6.3. How Do Institutions Emerge?	90
	6.4. Why Do Institutions Persist or Change?	94
	6.5. How Are Institutions Adopted or Enforced?	99
7.	Informal Institutions	101
	7.1. Conventions	101
	7.2. Moral Rules	106
	7.3. Social Norms	118
	7.4. Order without Law	126
8.	Formal Institutions	131
	8.1. The State as an Enforcing Agency	131
	8.2. The Enforcement of Property Rights	1 47
	8.3. Law and Social Order	149
	8.4. Social Institutions: Open Issues	152

III Markets

9.	Institutions and the Market: The Aggregate Level	161
	9.1. The New Institutionalism and the German
	Ordnungstheorie	161
	9.2. Market Evolution within Institutional Constraints	164
	9.3 Institutions as the Selection Environment of
	Evolutionary Market Processes	167
	9.4. The Metaphor of "Artificial Selection"	172
10.	Institutions and the Market: The Microeconomic Level	178
	10.1. How Stable Is the Selection Environment?	178
	10.2. Learning and the Relative Stability of Institutions	181
	10.3. Old Problems, New Problems, and the Channeling
	of the Market Process	185
11.	The Theory of Evolutionary Competition	188
	11.1. Evolutionary Economics, German
	Wettbewerbstheorie, and Austrian Market Process
	Theory	188
s s ta	11.2. The Supply Side: The Problem-Solving Entrepreneurs	193
	11.3. The Demand Side: The Selecting Consumers	197
	11.4. Exchange and Communication between Supply and	~ ~ ~
	Demand	203

Contents

11.6. The Market as a Selection Order I: The Issue of Coordination21.11.7. The Market as a Selection Order II: The Emergence of Technologies21712. An Application: Institutions, Markets, and Economic227Development22712.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22712.2. Interpreting the Evidence2312.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?24412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?244Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy?257References259Author Index30		11.5.	The Driving Forces of the Market: Arbitrage,
Coordination21.11.7. The Market as a Selection Order II: The Emergence of Technologies21.12. An Application: Institutions, Markets, and Economic22.Development22.12.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22.12.2. Interpreting the Evidence23.12.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game23.12.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?24.12.5. Credibility and Commitment24.12.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24.Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political25.References25.Author Index30.			Innovation, and Accumulation	208
11.7. The Market as a Selection Order II: The Emergence of Technologies21712. An Application: Institutions, Markets, and Economic Development22712.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22712.2. Interpreting the Evidence23712.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?24712.5. Credibility and Commitment24712.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?247Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political257References259Author Index30		11.6.	The Market as a Selection Order I: The Issue of
of Technologies21712. An Application: Institutions, Markets, and Economic227Development22712.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22712.2. Interpreting the Evidence23712.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market24412.5. Credibility and Commitment24412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic244Growth?244Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political255References255Author Index305			Coordination	214
12. An Application: Institutions, Markets, and Economic Development22'12.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22'12.2. Interpreting the Evidence2312.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?24'12.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24'Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political25'References25'Author Index30'		11.7.	The Market as a Selection Order II: The Emergence
Development22'12.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development22'12.2. Interpreting the Evidence23'12.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market24'Game?24'12.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24'Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political25'References25'Author Index30'			of Technologies	218
12.1. Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development2212.2. Interpreting the Evidence2312.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market24Game?2412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political25References25Author Index30	12.	An A	pplication: Institutions, Markets, and Economic
12.2. Interpreting the Evidence2312.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?2412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy?25References Author Index25		Devel	opment	227
12.3. The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game2312.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?2412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy?25References Author Index25		12.1.	Two Types of Theory for Explaining Development	227
12.4. Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market Game?2412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy?25References25Author Index30		12.2.	Interpreting the Evidence	232
Game?2412.5. Credibility and Commitment2412.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political24Economy?25References25Author Index30		12.3.	The Four Elements of a Wealth-Creating Game	235
12.5. Credibility and Commitment 24 12.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic 24 Growth? 24 Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political 25 References 25 Author Index 30		12.4.	Which Institutions Permit a Wealth-Creating Market
12.6. What Informal Institutions Foster Economic Growth?24Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy?25References Author Index25			Game?	240
Growth? 24 Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as Political Economy? 25 References 25 Author Index 30		12.5.	Credibility and Commitment	241
Concluding Observations: Unified Social Science as PoliticalEconomy?25References25Author Index30		12.6.	What Informal Institutions Foster Economic
Economy? 25 References 25 Author Index 30			Growth?	248
References 25 Author Index 30	Con	cluding	g Observations: Unified Social Science as Political
Author Index 30	Ecor	Economy?
Author Index 30
	Refe	References
Subject Index 31	Autl	Author Index
	311			