

Contents

Acknowledgments . . . . .	9
Vita Fortunati
Foreword . . . . .	11
Gabriella Morisco and Alessandra Calanchi
Introduction to Part I
The case and the canon in medicine, narrative, pseudo-sciences and crimefiction . . . . .	15
Giuseppe Martella
Walter Benjamin: experience and technology . . . . .	21
Giulia Ovarelli
Science and literature in the century of environment: a scientific romance . . . . .	35
Brian Hurwitz
Clinical cases and case reports: boundaries and porosities . . . . .	45
Ferdinando Bersani
Mesmerism: from an ambiguous physical and medical canon to psychology . . . . .	59
Gabriella Morisco
19 th century American bedlams: “moral treatment” and the case of married women . . . . .	73

Roberto Vecchiarelli Cesare Lombroso at the San Benedetto Psychiatric Hospital in Pesaro: the “case” of the Giornale dei Pazzi . . . . .	87
Neil Vickers Canonicity and the psychoanalytic case history: the case of Anna O. . . . .	103
Maurizio Ascari The rise of probability, detection and the “unity of design” between the 18 th and 19 th centuries . . . . .	113
Heather Worthington Reading the body of narrative: seeking scientific evidence in early 19 th century criminography . . . . .	125
Alessandra Calanchi Mr Sherlock Holmes and Dr John Watson: interfacing science and fiction in the “Sacred Canon” . . . . .	137
Maria de Lurdes Sampaio Detective fiction as “the paradise” of non-hegemonic sciences: Fernando Pessoa’s detective novels . . . . .	145
Giorgio Turchetti and Gastone Castellani Introduction to Part II The case and the canon in physics and complexity . . . . .	163
Lucian Ancu The canon and the case: a possible model . . . . .	169
Paolo Freguglia Some considerations about relativism in sciences . . . . .	177
Carlo Pellacani On the limits of physical theories . . . . .	187
Graziano Servizi Euclid, geometry and nature . . . . .	203
Bruno Giorgini Big Bang and black holes: an astrophysical detective story . . . . .	217

---

Giorgio Turchetti
The canon of integrability, the scandal of chaos, the information era: a trip from mechanicism to complexity . . . . .	227
Gastone Castellani and Daniel Remondini
Science, numbers, deductions and predictability: intersections between biometry and biophysics . . . . .	241
Stefano Salvioli
The dialectic relationship between case and canon as a driving force of the advancement of medicine and science . . . . .	249
Giuliano Pancaldi
The case and the canon in laboratory life . . . . .	261
Fabio Petrella
The case and the canon in Chinese and Jewish numerological traditions: analogies between the Yi Jing and the Sepher Yetzirah . . . . .	283
Abstracts . . . . .	289
Bio-bibliographical notes . . . . .	303