Table of contents

Introduction 1
Esther Rinke and Tanja Kupisch

Part I. (2)L1 versus L2 versus child L2: Similarities and differences

'Acquisition' in grammatical development: What does word order tell us? 19
Susanne E. Carroll

Tense and Aspect in early French development in aL2, 2L1 and cL2 learners 47
Suzanne Schlyter

Subject clitics in child L2 acquisition of French 75
Anne-Kathrin Preißler

Placement of infinitives in successive child language acquisition 105
Aldona Sopata

Part II. The acquisition of sentence structure and functional categories

The developmental pathway of nominal functional categories in early child Mandarin: Language specific features and other driving factors 125
Meiyun Chang-Smith

The emergence of CP in child Basque: Evidence for a fine-structured CP? 151
Noemi Kintana

Some directions for the systematic investigation of the acquisition of Cypriot Greek: A new perspective on production abilities from object clitic placement 179
Kleanthes K. Grohmann

Strict Interfaces and three kinds of Multiple Grammar 205
Tom Roeper

Part III. Autonomous development vs. crosslinguistic influence in bilingual first language acquisition

Delay and acceleration in bilingual first language acquisition: The same or different? 231
Marisa Patuto, Valentina Repetto and Natascha Müller

Intonation targets of yes/no questions by Spanish and German monolingual and bilingual children 263
Conxita Lleó and Martin Rakow

Perception of German vowels by bilingual Portuguese-German returnees: A case of phonological attrition? 287
Cristina Maria Moreira Flores and Andreia Schurt Rauber

Part IV. Language acquisition, language contact and diachronic change

Acquisition in the context of language change: The case of Brazilian Portuguese null subjects 309
Mary Aizawa Kato

On the diachronic reanalysis of null subjects and null objects in Brazilian Portuguese: Triggers and consequences 331
Jairo Nunes

On the decrease in subject-verb inversion in French declaratives 355
Georg A. Kaiser and Michael Zimmermann

On the relation between acceptability and frequency 383
Aria Adli

Name index 405

Subject index 409