3. The Syntax of Simplex Reflexives	54
3.1 Introduction	54
3.2 Unaccusative syntax and inalienable possession	57
3.2.1 Verbs of bodily harm	58
3.2.2 Developing the unaccusative analysis	71
3.2.3 Verbs of physical disruption	78
3.2.4 Psych verbs	81
3.3 Extending the analysis	88
3.3.1 Verbs of movement and change	88
3.3.2 Inherently reflexive verbs	92
3.3.3 Inalienable possession	93
3.3.3.1 Prefixed inherently reflexive verbs	98
3.3.3.2 AcI contexts with laten 'let'	101
3.4 Unaccusativity and agentivity	104
3.4.1 Introduction	104
3.4.2 Verbs expressing specialized activities	105
3.4.3 Residual cases of de-agentivized subjects with zich	111
3.5 Conclusion and consequences	114
4. Self -reflexives as Floating Quantifiers	116
4.1 Introduction	116
4.2 Self -reflexives, intensifiers, and floating quantifiers	117
4.2.1 Floating quantifiers and intensifiers	117
4.2.2 Intensifiers and reflexives	122
4.2.3 Floating quantifiers, reflexives, and intensifiers	125
4.3 Analysis	126
4.3.1 Floating quantifiers: previous analyses	126
4.3.2 Adverbial floating quantifiers and Agree	129
4.3.3 Intensifiers	135
4.3.4 Self -reflexives	137
4.4 Logophors	145
4.4.1 Logophors contained in islands	145
4.4.2 Logophors in argument position	149
4.5 Conclusion	151
5. Extending the Analysis	153
5.1 Introduction	153
5.2 Reflexives in PPs	153
5.2.1 Introduction	153
5.2.2 Two kinds of PPs	155

5.2.3	Analysis	158
5.2.4	PPs and phases	162
5.3	Nonlocal reflexives	163
5.3.1	Introduction	163
5.3.2	Restrictions on nonlocal zich	164
5.4	Configurations of zich	168
5.5	Simplex and complex reflexives crosslinguistically	172
5.5.1	Introduction	172
5.5.2	The distribution of self -less reflexives	172
5.5.3	Four types of reflexives	177
5.5.4	Consequences	182
5.5.5	On the correlation between the morphology and the semantics of reflexives	184
5.6	Conclusion	187
6.	The Semantics of Simplex and Complex Reflexives: the Case of zich and zichzelf	188
6.1	Introduction	188

6.3.2	A systematic ambiguity?	213
6.3.3	Psych verbs	215
6.3.4	Psych readings of non-psych verbs	217
6.3.5	Binding with psych verbs	221
6.3.6	Syntax or encyclopedia?	223
6.4	Dissociation effects	225
6.5	Conclusion	230
7.	The Syntax of Spatial Anaphora	231
7.1	Introduction	231
7.2	The data	233
7.2.1	Quantifier–pronoun binding	233
7.2.2	Perspective	234
7.2.3	The nature of the location	235

7.3	Axial parts	236
7.3.1	Ingredients	236
7.3.2	Implementation	240
7.4	Binding in snake -sentences	246
7.4.1	The proposal in a nutshell	247
7.4.1.1	Binding	247
7.4.1.2	Perspective	250
7.4.1.3	The nature of the location	254
7.4.1.4	Absence of perspectival and location differences	256
7.4.2	Extensions of the analysis	258
7.4.2.1	Pictures: whose perspective is it anyway?	258
7.4.2.2	Identity in self -forms	262
7.4.3	Dutch	265
7.5	Small clauses with have	270
7.5.1	Possessive HAVE	270
7.5.2	Unexpected quantifier binding	274
7.5.3	Animacy effects	278
7.5.4	Inherent vs contingent possession	281
7.6	Other approaches	283
7.6.1	Structural differences of the PPs involved	283
7.6.2	An asymmetry in Binding domains	285
