

Table of Contents

	Acknowledgements	9
1	Introduction:
	New Cartographies – New Cartographers?	11
1.1	A Proposal for an Archaeology of Future Spaces	15
1.2	Real-and-Imagined Spaces	23
2	A Short Introduction to Science Fiction
	since the 1980s: Contextualizing William Gibson	29
2.1	The Novum and the Subject Object Shift	34
2.2	Science Fiction and Postmodernism	37
2.3	Cyberpunk	38
2.4	William Gibson	42
3	Sprawl Space	47
3.1	Sprawl as Urban and Architectural Pattern	57
3.2	Hypermart: Marketplaces and Street Level Interaction	64
3.3	The Junk Collector: At the Finn's	71
3.4	Geographies of Waste	75
3.4.1	Kipple	79
3.4.2	Gomi	82
3.5	Generic Urbanity and Cognitive Mapping	88
4	Junk Art – Towards a spatial poetics	95
4.1	Boxmakers: Navigation of the heteroclite	98
4.2	Ekphrastic Fear	100
4.3	Wunderkammer Poetics – Architectonics of Meaning	106
4.4	Death and the Labyrinth	109

5	Space and Habitation: Century City II – City within a City	115
5.1	Sprawl Space as Habitat	124
5.2	The Arcology – Utopian Topographies	126
5.3	Corporate Arcologies	131
5.4	Turner's Tactics	140
5.5	The Projects – Arcologies Appropriated	155
5.6	Sprawl and Homogenization: Enclaves and Envelopes	165
6	Replandscape – Urban Nature and Artificial Landscaping	167
6.1	Urban Landscapes and Picturesque Nature	167
6.2	Replandscape and Artificial Life	171
6.3	Second Nature	178
6.4	Replandscape as Architecture	183
7	The Malling of Space	189
7.1	Mall Space: Container City	190
7.2	The Bridge	205
7.3	Franchise and Tourist Site: Bridge Space Revisited	217
8	Conclusion: Pattern Recognition and the End of the Future	225
9	Works Cited	233
	Index	249