

Contents

Series editor's preface	xi
Contributors	xiii
Introduction	1
MICHAEL LUCKEN
PART I
The multiplicity of chronologies, or the postwar contested	9
1 The postwar as a political paradigm	11
ERIC SEIZELET
2 The evolution of the concept of 'postwar education'	34
CHRISTIAN GALAN
PART II
Intellectuals facing the future	63
3 Maruyama Masao: from autonomy to pacifism	65
JACQUES JOLY
4 In the time after the defeat: Sakaguchi Ango, Takeda Taijun and Takeuchi Yoshimi (1946–1948)	84
EMMANUEL LOZERAND
5 Yasuoka Masahiro: a conservative vision of the postwar	98
EDDY DUFOURMONT

PART III

How should one speak? The poets' response 119

- 6 'Genzai', here and now: notes for a reflection on the values of the 'present' in the poetry of Tamura Ryūichi and Ayukawa Nobuo 121

KARINE ARNEODO

- 7 Speaking silence: the poetry of Ishihara Yoshirō 144

MAKIKO ANDRO-UEDA

PART IV

Forgetting, commemoration, diversion: the regimes of memory 161

- 8 The literary institution and the case of the Akutagawa Prize 163

ANNE BAYARD-SAKAI

- 9 The peace statue at Nagasaki 179

MICHAEL LUCKEN

- 10 Repression of history and commitment of bodies: birth of Action Art at the beginning of the 1960s 203

ANNE GOSSOT

PART V

Complex experiences: society on the road to democracy 225

- 11 The 'Red Purges' and the democratisation of Japan, 1949–1952 227

BRICE FAUCONNIER

- 12 Labour relations during the years of high growth 254

BERNARD THOMANN

- 13 The postwar for labour unionism and movements against industrial pollution 268

PAUL JOBIN

- Appendix: Chronology, 1937–2011 283

- Index* 297