

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	VIII
Acknowledgements	XI
List of Illustrations and Maps	XII
List of Abbreviations	XIII
INTRODUCTION	1
1. 'Mercatori Oriundi de Lucca	3
2. Bruges in the First Half of the Fourteenth Century	4
2.1 An Age of Tensions	4
2.2 The Formation of a European Business Centre	9
PART 1 IN SEARCH OF A PRIVILEGED RELATIONSHIP (1360-1384)	19
CHAPTER 1 FROM LUCCA TO BRUGES (1360-1370)	21
1.1 The Early Days	21
1.2 Iolanda of Bar: a Lavish Lady	26
1.3 The Marriage of Philip the Bold and Margaret of Male	31
CHAPTER 2 INTERNATIONAL ORIENTATION (1370-1384)	37
2.1 'Bourgeois de Paris'	37
2.1.1 In the Footsteps of Philip the Bold	41
2.1.2 The King and the 'Princes des Fleurs de Lys'	44
2.2 Diminished Presence in Bruges	50
2.2.1 The Lucchese Nation in Bruges	51
2.3 Neglect of Rapondi Interests in Lucca	55
2.4 'Mercatores Pape'	60
INTERMEDIATE CONCLUSION	73
PART 2 THE CITY, THE DUKE AND THEIR BANKER (1384-1430)	77
CHAPTER 3 THE BIRTH OF A TRIANGULAR RELATIONSHIP (1384-1396)	79
3.1 The Ceremonial Entry of Philip the Bold and Dino Rapondi	79
3.1.1 A New Dynasty	80
3.1.2 A New Administration	83
3.1.3 Bruges, again the Place to Be	85
3.2 Between the City and the Duke	90
3.2.1 The Big Debt Settlement of 1385	90
3.2.2 The Monetary Reform of 1389-90	92
3.2.3 The First Aide (1391-92)	95
3.3 The End of the 1380s and the Beginning of the 1390s: Commercial Success and Personal Failure	97
3.3.1 Climax of Trade	97
3.3.1.1 The Draper's Shop of the French and the Burgundian	98

3.3.2	Banishment from Lucca	103
3.3.3	The Rupture with Giovanni Rapondi	105
3.4	The Building Site of Sluis	108
3.4.1	The Works on the Castle	108
4.4.2	The ‘Tour de Bourgogne’	109
CHAPTER 4 “PAR LUI SE POVOIENT FAIRE TOUTES FINANCES”		113
(1396-1415)
4.1	Nicopolis: the Duke’s Disaster and the Banker’s Triumph	113
4.1.1	Financing the Crusade	113
4.1.2	The Release of John of Nevers	115
4.1.3	The Payment of the Ransom	117
4.2	The Old Duke and the New Duke	120
4.2.1	The Trade Negotiations with Engeland	120
4.2.2	The Succession in Brabant	121
4.2.3	The Passing of Philip the Bold and the Beginning of the Rule of John the Fearless	123
4.3	The Journey to Liège	125
4.4	Armagnacs versus Bourguignons: the French Civil War	127
4.4.1	The Murder of Louis of Orléans	127
4.4.2	The Rapondi as War Financiers	129
4.4.3	The Consequences of The War: Bruges in Need of Money	132
4.4.3.1	The Aftermath of the ‘Calfvel’	132
4.4.3.2	The Monetary Reforms of 1407 and 1410	137
4.5	The Final Years of Dino Rapondi’s Life	138
CHAPTER 5 THE FADING OF A TRIANGULAR RELATIONSHIP		143
(1415-1430)
5.1	The Bruges Branch under Filippo Rapondi: a New Course or Business as Usual?	143
5.1.1	Changing the Firm Structure	143
5.1.2	Changing Alliances	144
5.1.2.1	The Duke’s Three Lucchese	144
5.1.2.2	When the Old and the New Generations of Ducal Bankers Met	145
5.1.3	Changing Investment Patterns	146
5.1.4	Changing the Firm’s Policy: an Explanation	148
PART 3: BANKERS WITHOUT A DUKE (1430-1470)		151
CHAPTER 6 RAPONDI: THE NEXT GENERATION		153
CHAPTER 7 GOFFREDO RAPONDI: A MERCHANT IN SEARCH OF A PRIVILEGED RELATIONSHIP		157

CHAPTER 8 FRANCESCO RAPONDI AND THE END OF THE FAMILY'S BUSINESS ACTIVITIES	163
CONCLUSION: THE RAPONDI AND THE LATE MEDIEVAL FINANCIERS	165
BIBLIOGRAPHY	173
ANNEXES	199
INDEX	208