

Table of contents

Acknowledgements	9
Editorial Note	11
Illustrations	12
Preface: Jan van Naaldwijk and his Chronicles of Holland	15
1 ‘Wt voel boecken ende autoeren’	22
‘From many books and authors’.
The Historiographical Tradition of Holland before Jan van Naaldwijk
Approaches to Pre-Modern Historical Texts	22
Histories of Medieval History Writing in the Low Countries	25
Jan van Naaldwijk’s Sources	29
The Historiographical Tradition of Egmond	31
Jan Beke’s Chronographia	32
The Historiographical Tradition in Holland after Jan Beke	39
Claes Heynenzoon, ‘Herald Beyeren’	43
The ‘Anonymous Clerk from the Low Countries by the Sea’	47
The ‘Chronicle of Gouda’	51
Johannes Gherbrandi a Leydis	58
The Dutch Fasciculus temporum	64
Accessing the Tradition of History Writing about Holland around 1500	67
2 ‘Ghenomen, vergadert ende ghetranslateert ende ouergheset’	70
‘Compiled, collected, translated and adapted’
Jan van Naaldwijk’s First Chronicle of Holland
Introduction: Jan van Naaldwijk’s First Chronicle of Holland	70
PART I THE OPENING PAGES OF THE MANUSCRIPT OF JAN VAN NAALDWIJK’S FIRST CHRONICLE OF HOLLAND	73
Jan van Naaldwijk at Work: An Image and a Description	73
Jan van Naaldwijk’s List of Sources	77

PART II THE TEXTUAL SOURCES OF JAN VAN NAALDWIJK'S FIRST
CHRONICLE OF HOLLAND	80
The Historical Canon of Holland	80
Jan Beke, Chronographia , Dutch translation and continuation ('Dutch Beke')	80
'Several printed chronicles' and the Fasciculus temporum	83
Chronological Expansion	85
The 'Most Excellent Chronicle of Brabant'	85
Geo-Political Expansion: Chronicles of France	87
Jean Froissart, Chroniques	88
Robert Gaguin, Compendium de origine et gestis Francorum	92
Expanding Beyond the Region: The New Universal Chronicles	96
Antoninus Florentinus, Chronicon	97
Jacobus Philippus Foresti Bergomensis, Supplementum supplementi chronicarum	100
Hartmann Schedel, Liber cronicarum ('The Nuremberg Chronicle')	102
Flavio Biondo, Historiarum ab inclinatione Romanorum imperii decades	103
The Expanding World: Itinerarii	104
Marco Polo, De consuetudinibus et conditionibus orientalium regionum	105
Johannes de Hese, Itinerarius per diversas mundi partes	106
Bernhard von Breydenbach, Peregrinatio in Terram Sanctam	107
Miscellaneous Historical Sources	108
Aeneas Silvius Piccolomini (Pope Pius II), Cosmographia	108
Jean Lemaire de Belges, La légende des Vénitiens and l'Histoire du prince Sophy	109
Poggio Bracciolini, Epistola de morte Hieronymi Pragensis	111
Willem Hermans, Olandie Gelrieque bellum	114
Biographical sources	115
Martial d'Auvergne, Les vigilles de la mort de Charles VII ; Jacobus Philippus Foresti Bergomensis, De claris mulieribus	115
'The Life of Jean Tristan'	116
'The Chronicle of the Countess of Hennenberg'	118
Giovanni Simonetta, Commentarii rerum gestarum Francisci Sfortiae	121
Unhistorical Histories: Anecdotes	122
Gesta Romanorum	122
Poggio Bracciolini's Facetiae , French translation by Guillaume Tardif	125
Johannes Vitalis, Defensorium Beatae Virginis Mariae	126

‘Other poems and privileges’	127
Conclusion: Jan van Naaldwijk and the Sources of his First Chronicle of Holland	133
PART III AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL ELEMENTS IN JAN VAN NAALDWIJK’S FIRST CHRONICLE OF HOLLAND
Anecdotes from Jan’s Own Experience	134
Personal Information about Jan	137
Jan’s Earlier Works	141
Conclusion: King Donkey’s Ears	143
3 ‘Dit boeck hoert toe Jan van Naeldwijk’	148
‘This book belongs to Jan van Naaldwijk’
Jan van Naaldwijk’s Second Chronicle of Holland
The Divisiekroniek	148
The Prologue to Jan’s Second Chronicle of Holland	157
Erasmus, Willem Hermans and Cornelius Aurelius	162
Jan van Naaldwijk and the Divisiekroniek	168
Questioning Humanist Historiography: The Batavians	174
Jan’s Use of the Divisiekroniek	181
Additions from Other Sources	191
The Naaldwijk Family	193
Hoeken and Kabeljauwen	195
The Unfinished End	200
4 ‘Veel fabuleuse dingen’	202
‘Many fabrications’
Medieval Chronicles in the Early Modern Period
Emanuel van Meteren as a Reader of Jan van Naaldwijk’s Chronicles of Holland	202
Medieval Chronicles and the Popular Printing Press	204
Adelskronieken	213
Current Affairs and Topical Histories	222
Early Modern Historical Writing and the Medieval Chronicle Tradition	227
Conclusion: Medieval History and the Dutch Republic	235
Appendices
1 Prologue, Jan van Naaldwijk’s First Chronicle of Holland	240
2 Jan van Naaldwijk’s List of Sources	242
3 Prologue, Jan van Naaldwijk’s Second Chronicle of Holland	244

Bibliography	247
Manuscripts	247
Printed Books	249
Index	273
Transcriptions of London, British Library, MSS Cotton Vitellius F xv and Cotton Tiberius C iv	CD-ROM