

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 3
 Key Threads and Themes 7
 Gender Centrality 10
 Relevant International Norms 15

PART ONE: Conflict and Its Dynamics

Chapter 1. Before, During, and After Conflict: The Connections for Women 27
 Mapping the Status of Women Prior to Conflict 28
 Some Relevant Measures 31
 Gender, Law, and Social Capital 34
 A Practical Assessment of the Before and After 36
Chapter 2. Gender and the Forms and Experiences of Conflict 40
 Women as Political and Military Actors 42
 Violence, Women, and Victimization 45
 Masculinities and Conflict 49
 Conclusion 55

PART TWO: Toward Peace

Chapter 3. The Significance of Security: Realizing Peace 59
 Is Gender Central to Security? 61
 Security Reform and Transition 62
 Critique of Mainstream Approaches to the Concept of Post-Conflict
 Security 66
 Is Security the Same for Men and Women? 67
 Security Reform Meets Pervasive Violence and Discrimination 70
 A New Paradigm of Gendered Security 74
 Conclusion 79
Chapter 4. Engendering International Intervention 81
 International Interventions 83

Types and Phases of Post-Conflict Intervention and Their Potential Gender Impact	85
The Actors	89
Toward Gender-Positive Intervention	95
Capturing and Retaining Gender Equity Achieved During War	101
Conclusion	102
Chapter 5. Peacekeeping	105
Parameters and Status of Peacekeeping Missions	106
Identifying the Peacekeepers	108
Masculinities of Peacekeeping	109
Positive and Negative Lessons Learned from Peacekeeping Missions	112
Positives and Negatives of Employment and Economic Stimulus	113
Positives and Negatives Associated with Gender-Cultural Interactions	114
Sexual Violence and Peacekeeping Missions	115
What Would Gender-Positive Peacekeeping Encompass?	117
Legal Accountability	118
Training for Peacekeepers	122
Codes of Conduct	125
Added Gender Roles in Peacekeeping	127
Conclusion	129
Chapter 6. Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration (DDR) Programs	131
DDR Programs: What Happens?	132
The Power of Gender and DDR	133
Deconstructing DDR Programs	136
Reconstructing DDR Programs	138
Special Accommodations for Women and Girls	142
Attention to Masculinities	144
The Ways Forward	148
Conclusion	150
Chapter 7. International and Local Criminal Accountability for Gendered Violence	152
Sex-Based Violence and Accountability in International Law	153
The Legal Journey to Codify Gendered Crimes in Armed Conflicts	156
Evidentiary Rules and Sexual Violence	164
Other Accountability Mechanisms—Restorative Justice and Other Practices	168
Conclusion	172

Chapter 8. Remedies	175
Truth Processes	176
The Gendered Dimensions of Truth Recovery	179
How Can Truth Recovery Mechanisms Centralize Gender?	185
Reparations	186
Lustration, Vetting, and Gender	192
Conclusion	195
Chapter 9. Law Reform, Constitutional Design, and Gender	197
Gender and the Rule of Law in Post-Conflict Societies	199
Constitutional Transformation and Post-Conflict Processes	204
Process: Peace Agreements as Constitutional Documents	205
Peace Agreements, Constitutions, and Customary Law	210
Gendered Dimensions of Constitution Drafting in Implementation Agreements	212
Constitutional Gender Centrality—Substance and Export	215
Reproductive Rights	219
Conclusion	222

PART THREE: Reconstruction and Development

Chapter 10. Gender and Governance	229
Post-Conflict Governance	231
The Gendered Components of Post-Conflict Governance Programs	232
Institution Building	241
Governance Conflated with Economic Reconstruction and Democratization	244
Gendering Governance	249
Conclusion	253
Chapter 11. Development Infrastructure: Economics, Health, and Education	254
The Differing Directions of Post-Conflict and Development Fields	256
Gender Centrality in Development	259
Social Services Justice as the Integration of Post-Conflict Processes and Development	262
Long-Term Development	267
Conclusion	271

Notes 273

Index 347