

Contents

1	Introduction
1.1	'Snow from Broken Eyes'	9
1.2	Drugs, Cocaine: A Condensed Literary History	15
1.3	Secondary Literature Review	37
1.4	Reading Cocaine: Some Methodological Considerations	54

Part One: Gottfried Benn

2	The Toxicology of Genius
2.1	Disentangling Benn	69
2.2	Artificially Inspired? Brussels, 1916	74
3	Benn's Cocaine Poems
3.1	Depersonalization and the Blueness of Poetry	83
3.2	Gods in the Last Line	89
3.3	Poetological Interference, or the Will to Explanation	99
3.4	The Second Regression	104
4	Benn's Cocaine Plays
4.1	The Strange Case of Doctors Rönne and Pameelen	117
4.2	Picasso's Drugged Exhaustion	123
4.3	The Etymology of a Magic Formula	127

Part Two: Walter Rheiner

5	A Portrait of the Artist as a Drug Addict
5.1	Under the Influence: Cocaine, Morphine, Expressionism	137
5.2	Literary Affinities and the Autobiographical Thread	161
6	Rheiner's Master Narrative of Addiction
6.1	Innocence and Experience	173
6.2	The Decadent Drug	185
6.3	Two Portraits of the Addict as a Madman	192

6.4 Rheiner's Final Chapter	218
Part Three: Georg Trakl
7 The Life and Death of an Austrian Drug-Eater
7.1 'Lost between Melancholy and Drunkenness'	225
7.2 Poetry, Biography, Reality	235
8 The Poems of Trakl's 'Cocaine Period'
8.1 A Delirious Seascape	241
8.2 On the Road to Black Decay	251
9 Trakl's Poetics of Intoxication
9.1 Aspects of an Intoxicated Style	259
9.2 Wine, Poppy, Dark Poisons: Trakl's Poetic Intoxicants	276
10 Black Snow: the Shadow of a White Drug
10.1 Performing Derangement	291
10.2 Listening in the Snow	302
Summary of Findings	315
Acknowledgements	321
Bibliography
Works by Benn, Rheiner and Trakl	323
Other works cited	323
Index of Names (and Works by Benn, Rheiner & Trakl)	335