

Contents

List of figures.....	9
List of tables.....	11
Preface and acknowledgments.....	13
Introduction.....	15
Part I: Facing authoritarianism and the end of the empire: in search for an alternative identity.....	25
Non-canonical adaptations: Non-inscription and dictatorship in A Bee in the Rain (1968–71) and The Dauphin (2001) by Fernando Lopes .....	27
Attempts to decolonize the mind: The representation of the African colonial war in Portuguese cinema.....	57
The discovery of paradox: the European expansion in six films by Manoel de Oliveira .....	77
The adolescent as post-colonial allegory: Strategies of inter-subjectivity in Portuguese films of the 1990s.....	109
Part II: Facing past and present from a transnational perspective: between identity and difference.....	141
Ambivalent transnationality: Luso-African co-productions after independence (1988–2010) .....	143
Lusophone monologues or transnational dialogues: the Luso-Brazilian literary adaptations (1995 – 2008) .....	175
The limits of Luso-Brazilian brotherhood: Fortress Europe in Foreign Land (1995) by Walter Salles and Daniela Thomas .....	205
Identities adrift: lusophony and migration in national and transnational films .....	219
Works cited.....	243
Index .....	257