

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
-----------------	----

INTRODUCTION

Mother/Country: The Politics of the Personal in the Fiction of Colm Tóibín	I
--	---

CHAPTER 1

'Like Being in Another Country': Doubled Narratives of Nation and Self in The South	35
---	----

CHAPTER 2

Politics and the Lost Mother(s) in The Heather Blazing	65
---	----

CHAPTER 3

'Hiding from the Other Side': Politics and Sexuality in The Story of the Night	97
--	----

CHAPTER 4

'Nothing Secret, Nothing Held Inside': Narrating Absence and Trauma in The Blackwater Lightship	123
---	-----

CHAPTER 5

'A Great Withholding': Fictive (Auto)Biography and the Primacy of Art in The Master	155
---	-----

CHAPTER 6

'She Would Have to Go Back': Emigration and the Portability of Culture in Brooklyn	189
Bibliography	221
Index	231