

Table of Contents

Introduction: Re-Imagining Gender and Sexuality in Women's Crime Fiction

JULIE H. KIM	1
--------------------	---

Nancy Drew vs. Nancy Clue: Girl Sleuths Discover Their Sexualities

1. Configuring Space and Sexuality: Nancy Drew Enters The Bluebeard Room MICHAEL G. CORNELIUS	13
2. Not-So-Nice, Indeed: Mabel Maney, Girl Detectives, and Sexual Awakenings JENNIFER MITCHELL	36

Long Ago, in Places Far Away: Gender Subversion in Detective Fiction Period Pieces

3. Repopulating the Margins: Rhys Bowen's Treatment of Gender, History, and Power KELLEY WEZNER	61
4. Assuming Identities: Strategies of Drag in Laurie R. King's Mary Russell Series MEGAN HOFFMAN	81

Genre vs. Gender, Sexuality, Race, and Class

5. Genre-Bending in Neely's Blanche White Series: Testing the Limits of Crime Fiction BETSY YOUNG	101
6. "W" Is for Woman: Deconstructing the Private Dick in Sue Grafton's Alphabet Series HEATH A. DIEHL	120

Language and Gender, Narrative and Sexuality: Rhetorics of Identity and Desire

7. Melancholia, Narrative Objectivity and the Eyewitness: The Role of the Narrator in Barbara Vine's A Dark-Adapted Eye and The Minotaur ANDREW HOCK SOON NG	143
8. Postfeminism(s) and Authority in Contemporary Glasgow Police Procedurals PETER CLANDFIELD	167
(De)constructed Body and Sexual Psychopathy: Serial Killing of Gender Binaries
9. Beyond Gender and Sexuality: The Serial Killers of Val McDermid NEIL MCCAW	191
10. Neither Victim nor Vixen: Reading the Female Detective's Receding Body and Textual Violence WINTER S. ELLIOTT	211
About the Contributors	231
Index	233