CONTENTS

1 Early Modern Cartography and Power in European Russia and Poland-Lithuania 23

2 Enlightenment to Romantic Historical Claims between Imperial Russia and East Central Europe 44

3 Purposes of Early 19th-Century Russian Imperial Cartography 65

4 Purposes of Early 19th-Century Polish National Cartography 89

5 Mid-19th-Century Cartography and the Idea of Progress in Russian Empirecraft 110

6 Modern European Ethnoschematization and the Vienna–St. Petersburg Axis 133

7 Late 19th-Century Russian Imperial Schemes and Habsburg-Polish Cartographic Borrowings in Galicia 158

8 Borderlands as Modern Homelands? Mapping Ukraine and the Grand Duchy of Lithuania 180

9 Nationalizing Cartography in the Borderlands before World War I 211

10 Political Cartography in East Central Europe during World War I 242

Conclusion: Purposes of Maps in the Borderlands of 1919 267

Notes 281

Bibliography 337

Index 343