

Contents

List of figures	vii
Notes on contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
David Onnekink and Gijs Rommelse
Response to introduction: ‘ideology’, factions and foreign politics in early modern Europe	11
Robert von Friedeburg
1 Absolutism, ideology and English foreign policy: the ideological context of Robert Molesworth’s Account of Denmark	29
Steve Pincus
2 Partisan politics, history and the national interest (1700–1748)	55
Gary Evans
3 From ‘jealous emulation’ to ‘cautious politics’: British foreign policy and public discourse in the mirror of ancient Athens (ca. 1730–ca. 1750)	93
Doohwan Ahn
4 The ideological context of the Dutch war (1672)	131
David Onnekink
5 Ideologies of interests in English foreign policy during the reign of Charles II	145
Stéphane Jettot
6 Holy war and republican pacifism in the early-eighteenth-century Commonwealth of Poland-Lithuania	163
Benedict Wagner-Rundell
7 Justifying war: churchmen and war in France and England during the Nine Years War (1688–1697)	181
Solange Rameix

8	Romeyn de Hooghe and the imagination of Dutch foreign policy Henk van Nierop	197
9	A change of ideology in Imperial Spain? Spanish commercial policy with America and the change of dynasty (1648–1740) Ana Crespo Solana	215
10	Mountains of iron and gold: mercantilist ideology in Anglo-Dutch relations (1650–1674) Gijs Rommelse	243
11	Balancing Europe: ideas and interests in British foreign policy (c. 1700–c. 1720) Andrew C. Thompson	267
12	‘To restore and preserve the liberty of Europe’: William III’s ideas on foreign policy Wout Troost	283
	Index	305