

Contents / Inhoud

Eric Jorink and Bart Ramakers	Undivided territory. 'Art' and 'science' in the early modern Netherlands	6
Sven Dupré	The historiography of perspective and reflexy-const in Netherlandish art	34
Dániel Margócsy	The camel's head. Representing unseen animals in sixteenth-century Europe	62
Marrigje Rikken and Paul J. Smith	Jan Brueghel's Allegory of Air (1621) from a natural historical perspective	86
Karin Leonhard	Painted poison. Venomous beasts, herbs, gems, and Baroque colour theory	116
Eric Jorink	Beyond the lines of Apelles. Johannes Swammerdam, Dutch scientific culture and the representation of insect anatomy	148
Gijsbert M. van de Roemer	Regulating the arts. Samuel van Hoogstraten versus Willem Goeree	184
Rienk Vermij	The light of nature and the allegorisation of science on Dutch frontispieces around 1700	208
Thijs Weststeijn	From hieroglyphs to universal characters. Pictography in the early modern Netherlands	238
Joke Spaans	Art, science and religion in Romeyn de Hooghe's Hieroglyphica	282
Fokko Jan Dijksterhuis	'Will the eye be the sole judge?' 'Science' and 'art' in the optical inquiries of Lambert ten Kate and Hendrik van Limborch around 1710	308
Bart Ramakers	Staging nature. Observation, imagination and experience, in E.M. Post's Het land, in brieven (1788)	332