

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
List of Illustrations	xi
Introduction	xiii

1

National Identity-Formation	1
Aspects of Nation-Building	1
The Contribution of Literature to National Identity-Formation	10
Children's Literature and National Identity-Formation	18

2

The Canadian Situation	27
Canadian National Identity	27
Multiculturalism	35
Multicultural Children's Literature	49

3

Canadian Cultural Policy with Regard to Children's Culture and Literature	59
Public Libraries' Children's Services	61
Canadian Research Collections Specializing in Children's Literature	77
Canadian Publishing for Children	84
Canadian Children's Book Awards	101
Promotional Activities	106
Guides to Canadian Children's Literature	122
State of Research	137

4
	The Immigrant Experience as Depicted in Anglo-Canadian Youth Fiction 1950–1994	155
	Criteria of Choice for the Corpus of Primary Literature	155
	Pioneering Multicultural Children’s Literature: The 1950s	162
	— Lyn Cook: The Bells on Finland Street	162
	— Lyn Cook: The Little Magic Fiddler	195
	The Beginnings of Official Multicultural Policy: The 1970s	217
	— Jean Little: From Anna and Listen for the Singing	217
	— Frances Duncan: Kap-Sung Ferris	236
	Steering Towards the Canadian Multiculturalism Act: The 1980s	253
	— Monica Hughes: My Name is Paula Popowich!	253
	Consolidating Multiculturalism in Multicultural Canadian Children’s Literature: The 1990s	275
	— Paul Yee: Breakaway	275
5
	The Development of Canadian Multicultural Children’s Literature: Conclusion and Outlook for the Future	293
	Bibliography	307
	Index	335