

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements

List of figures

List of tables

Part I SOCIAL SUPPORT NETWORKS AND MOBILITY

Chapter 1. Introduction .....	1
1. Research questions.....	5
2. Significance of the study.....	5
3. Structure of the thesis.....	8
Chapter 2. Theoretical and conceptual frameworks .....	10
1. Social networks.....	10
1.1. Social support networks.....	11
1.2. Friendship networks as a source of social support.....	13
1.3. International doctoral students' friendship networks: an ego-centric approach.....	14
1.4. Categorization, identification and the principle of homophily.....	16
2. Delineating borders: transnationalism as theoretical optic and as social practice.....	19
2.1. Contested grounds of transnationalism.....	20
2.2. Transnational social spaces.....	22
2.3. Transnationality and transnational connections: international students.....	23
2.4. Cosmopolitanisms.....	24
3. Conclusions.....	26

PART II INTERNATIONAL STUDENT MOBILITY

Chapter 3. Internationalization of higher education: the German context .....	28
1. Internationalization, Europeanization, globalization.....	28
2. Internationalization strategies of Germany.....	30
3. Measures taken to promote studies for international students in Germany.....	31
3.1. Initiative of Excellence: transforming into an IQ-Magnet.....	32
3.2. And the repercussions?.....	35
4. Overview and scope of international students in Germany.....	36
5. International PhD students at a glance.....	39
6. Conclusions.....	41

PART III METHODS AND METHODOLOGY

Chapter 4. Research Design .....	42
1. Structure, composition and procedure of the empirical study.....	42
1.1. Semi-structured interviews and the interview guide.....	43
1.2. Social network analysis.....	44
2. Selection and depiction of the interview partners.....	45
3. Ego-centered network analysis.....	47
3.1. UCINET version 6.0.....	49
3.2. Operationalization of social support.....	50
3.2.1. Micro-level attributes of social support: individual features.....	51
3.2.2. Meso-level attributes of social support: network features.....	52
4. Triangulation of the research.....	54
Chapter 5. Interacting with the data .....	55
1. Access to the field and the realities of the fieldwork.....	55
2. Relation to the respondents and the topic of the study.....	55
3. Coding and analyzing the data.....	58
4. Limitations and cautions.....	60
5. Conclusions.....	61

PART IV ANALYSIS: SOCIAL SUPPORT NETWORKS ORGANIZED ALONG VARIOUS IDENTIFICATIONS

Chapter 6. Multinational friendship networks of international doctoral students providing social support.....	62
1. Compositional analysis.....	62
2. Revisiting the networks: structural analysis.....	67
2.1. Homophilious relations.....	68
2.2. Cohesive subgroups within the network.....	70
2.3. Betweenness centrality.....	71
3. Conclusions.....	72
Chapter 7. Analogous trends in divergent support types: emotional and instrumental support.....	73
1. Emotionally supportive interactions.....	73
1.1. Influence of identification on networks in multilingual contexts.....	75
1.2. The comfort of the native language.....	76
2. Instrumental support.....	76
2.1. A closer look to co-national friends and identification.....	79
2.2. 'I am not like all these migrants ': nationality as a flexible resource.....	80
3. Zooming into relations with co-nationals.....	82
3.1. Illustration of co-national friendship pattern.....	82
3.2. Similar networks but diverse positions: B201M and B211F.....	85
4. Conclusions.....	88
Chapter 8. Influence of supportive networks on identification: transnationality and transnational social practices.....	90
1. Transnationality: relations with home.....	91
2. Bittersweet homecomings.....	92
3. Perpetuating mobilities: mediated personal communication as a transnational social practice.....	95
4. Cosmopolitanisms.....	99
4.1. Experiencing the difference: ways to become tolerant.....	99
4.2. Multifocality.....	101
4.3. Mediascapes of international PhD students.....	102
5. Conclusions.....	104
Chapter 9. Party, BBQ and fun but what about money?.....	105
1. Social activities.....	105
1.1. Academic/international student identification.....	107
1.1.1. The significance of education abroad and institutional context: perception of 'better careers'.....	108
1.1.2. Being an academic: empowering or disempowering process?.....	110
1.1.2.1. Independence.....	110
1.1.2.2. Isolation - 'a journey everyone goes through alone'.....	111
1.1.3. Supervisor: the role model and the gatekeeper.....	112
1.2. A community of practice?.....	113
2. Financial support: non-existent type of support?.....	115
2.1. Cosmopolitanism as flexibility in the global market.....	117
3. Conclusions.....	118
PART V. CONCLUSION
Chapter 10. General discussion and concluding remarks.....	120
1. Overview of the analysis.....	120
2. Implications.....	122
Bibliography.....	125