

Table of Contents

Contributors	9
Preface	11
Contextual analysis of bone remains from the Islamic ar-Raqqā/ar-Rafīqā in Syria Cornelia Becker	13
The imperial burial place at Königslutter. Anthropological investigation of the four skeletons at the burial place of Emperor Lothar III, and reflections on the treatment of his body after death Angelika Burkhardt and Gisela Grupe	45
An investigation of mummified tissue in the hip region of the skeleton of Duke Henry the Proud (died 1139 AD) by transmission light microscopy Anja Staskiewicz	61
„Save us from want and famine ...“ – A contribution to the reconstruction of diet in Brandenburg during the high medieval to early modern times Bettina Jungklaus	67
Using $\delta^{18}\text{O}$ analysis to identify differences in altitude of habitation George McGlynn	87
Reconstructing diet and identifying malnutrition and starvation by isotopic analysis of hair Ferdinand M. Neuberger, Michaela Harbeck and Gisela Grupe	109
Interpretive limitation of bone collagen nitrogen-isotope ratios: Preliminary insights from a dataset for subadults Karyn C. Olsen, Kristin von Heyking, George McGlynn, Gisela Grupe, Christine D. White, and Fred J. Longstaffe	119
Die minoische und mykenische Tierwelt Milets (Westtürkei) Joris Peters	133
Possibilities and limitations of defining and interpreting local strontium and oxygen isotope signatures based on the Wenigumstadt cemetery finds: The acreage model Marina Vohberger	165
Instructions for authors	211