

TABLE OF CONTENTS

LIST OF MAPS	xviii
INTRODUCTION	xix
I. GLADSTONE'S PRIME
The duel between Gladstone and Disraeli	1
The Franco-Prussian War and its reactions	3
Belgian neutrality	3
The Black Sea clauses	4
Cardwell's army reforms	8
Abolition of purchase	9
Short service	13
County regiments and linked battalions	14
Lord Selborne's Judicature Act	16
Decline of the government	19
The Alabama claims	19
Lowe's match duty	20
Bruce's Licensing Bills	21
University Tests Act and Ballot Act	23
Effects on Ireland	24
Gladstone's first resignation	25
His defeat at the polls and loss of office	26
The queen and the nation	26
The Ashanti War	27
II. THE RULE OF DISRAELI
Position of Disraeli	30
His cabinet	32
Gladstone's withdrawal from politics	33
The Public Worship Act	34
The social legislation of 1875	35
Purchase of the Suez Canal shares	37
The title 'Empress of India'	39
The Eastern Question	40
Serbia at war with Turkey	43
The Bulgarian atrocities	44
Gladstone's agitation	45
The Russo-Turkish War	46
The Congress of Berlin	49
Character of the settlement	50
The crisis in agriculture	54
Irish Nationalism becomes militant	56
Formation of the Land League	57
The South African problems	57
Annexation of the Transvaal	59
The Zulu War	60

India and Afghanistan	62
The massacre at Kabul	63
Midlothian and the fall of the government	64

III. THE ASCENDANCY OF PARNELL

Whigs and radicals in the new cabinet	66
Bradlaugh and the parliamentary oath	67
Majuba and the peace after it	69
Roberts's march to Kandahar	70
Death of Lord Beaconsfield	70
The Land war in Ireland	72
Forster's coercion and Gladstone's Land Act	73
The Kilmainham treaty	74
The Phoenix Park murders	75
England in Egypt	77
Alexandria and Tel-el-Kebir	79
Revolt of the Mahdi	80
Gordon at Khartoum	81
Death of Gordon	83
The Penjdeh Incident	83
Consequences of Gladstone's foreign policy	84
Chamberlain's radical campaign	87
Franchise extension of 1884	88
Gladstone gives place to Lord Salisbury	90
Conquest of Upper Burma	91
Lord Carnarvon and Parnell	92
Gladstone and Parnell	92
The general election of 1885	94
Both parties change front	95
Gladstone's third ministry	97
Defeat of home rule	99
Re-birth of English Socialism	100

IV. ECONOMICS AND INSTITUTIONS, 1870-86

Comparative populations	102
Birth-rates	103
Foreign trade	104
Iron and Steel	105
The transformation of shipping	107
Coal production	108
Seeds of economic weakness	110
The two depressions	111
The spread of limited liability companies	112
Rise of a rentier class	114
The disaster to agriculture	115
The origins of the frozen meat trade	119
Developments in the navy	121
The 'Admiral' class	123
Democracy and bureaucracy	124

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ix

Formation of the local government board	126
Municipal enterprise	127
Changes in Whitehall	130
Status of trade unions	131
Trade-union development	133
Rising plane of prosperity and comfort	134

V. MENTAL AND SOCIAL ASPECTS, 1870-86

1870 as a 'watershed'	136
Prominence of religion in mid-Victorian England	137
Dominance of Evangelicalism	137
The forces that disintegrated it	140
The revision of the English Bible	143
The character of the Press	144
Advances of education	146
The new school boards	146
The universities	147
Education of women and girls	149
Dearth of science teaching	151
The arts at this time	152
Reasons why they were bad	152
The campaign of William Morris	155
Architecture	155
Painting and sculpture	156
Music	158
Literature	159
Novels	160
Poetry and history	161
Law, classics, and philosophy	162
Imperialism and social reform	163
Social life: the development of games	164
The invention of lawn tennis	165
Cycling	166
Costumes	167
Sex-morality	169
The Dilke case	169
The Criminal Law Amendment Act	170
The campaign to repeal the C.D. Acts	171

VI. LORD SALISBURY'S PRIME

Formation of his second cabinet	172
Lord R. Churchill as chancellor of the exchequer	173
His resignation and fall	174
Balfour becomes Irish secretary	176
Queen Victoria's first jubilee	177
The first colonial conference	178
Ireland and the 'Plan of Campaign'	178
'Bloody Sunday' in Trafalgar Square	180
The Pigott forgeries	181
The Parnell Commission	182

The fall of Parnell	183
O'Shea v. O'Shea and Parnell	183
Gladstone bans Parnell	184
Parnell's death	186
The partition of Africa	187
The agreements of the year 1890	191
The negotiation with Portugal	192
The negotiation with Germany	193
General orientation of the Powers	194
Balkan crises of 1885-7	195
Russia's transition from Germany to France	196
Lord Salisbury's Mediterranean treaty	198
Bismarck offers an alliance	199
Salisbury's character as foreign minister	200
Goschen's finance	201
Conversion of the National Debt	202
The County Councils Act	203
Free education	204
The London dock strike	205
The Newcastle programme	207
Salisbury defeated at the polls	208

VII. A LIBERAL INTERLUDE

Gladstone's fourth ministry	209
The Second Home Rule Bill	211
The conquest of Matabeleland	212
The Parish Councils Act	213
Gladstone retires	214
Succession of Lord Rosebery	215
Activity of the House of Lords	216
Harcourt's death duties	217
War between China and Japan	219
Armenian massacres	219
The government's defeat	221
General election of 1895	221
Foundation of the I.L.P.	222
Changes in the personnel of politics	223

VIII. THE ASCENDANCY OF CHAMBERLAIN

Lord Salisbury's third ministry	224
Chamberlain at the colonial office	225
Conquest of Ashanti	225
The Uitlanders in the Transvaal	226
Kruger's ambitions	227
President Cleveland's Message	229
The Jameson Raid	231
The 'Kruger telegram'	232
Responsibilities for the raid	233
Rising in Matabeleland	236
Workmen's Compensation Act	237

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xi

Old age pension schemes	237
Armenian massacres at Constantinople	238
Changes in the Liberal leadership	239
The colonial conference of 1897	240
Anglo-French rivalry in West Africa	242
Kitchener re-conquers the Sudan	244
The Fashoda dispute	244
Milner sent to South Africa	245
The Uitlander petition	247
Negotiations preceding the war	248
Responsibilities for the war	249
The Boer ultimatum	251
Initial British defeats	253
Lord Roberts reverses the situation	254
The Boers adopt guerrilla warfare	256
Great Britain's isolation	256
Cretan question and Turco-Greek War	257
Germany's Navy Law and Bagdad scheme	258
The Powers scramble for China	259
Chamberlain offers an alliance to Germany	260
Chamberlain's second offer	261
Relief of the Peking legations	262
Colonial contingents for South Africa	263
Australian federation	263
Death of Gladstone	264
Foundation of the labour party	265
The Khaki election	267
Reconstruction of the cabinet	267
Death of Queen Victoria	268

IX. ECONOMICS AND INSTITUTIONS, 1886-1900

Comparative populations	269
Birth-rates	270
Class-differences in fertility	271
Slower rate of increase of wealth	273
Improvements in money wages	274
Effects of foreign tariffs	275
Coal and steel	277
Cotton and shipbuilding	278
Shipping and railways	279
Invention of electric trams	280
Invention of motor vehicles	281
Course of trade	282
The Baring crisis	282
Trusts and combines	283
Further ruin of agriculture	284
Creation of the board of agriculture	286
Rapid naval changes	287
Their money cost	289

Attempts at army reform	290
The Hartington commission	290
Failure to create a general staff	291
Consequences in the South African War	292
Growth of bureaucracy at Whitehall	294
Growth of local government	295
Developments in London	296
Expansion of trade-unionism	298
Miners' lock-out in 1893	298
Engineers' strike in 1897	300
Poverty and slums	301
Broad national progress	302

X. MENTAL AND SOCIAL ASPECTS, 1886-1900

A period of unsettlement	304
Shrinkage of organized religion	305
Competition of other careers	305
Impoverishment of country livings	306
Trial of the bishop of Lincoln	307
Statistics of church-going	308
Changes in Sunday observance	309
Revolution in the character of newspapers	310
Career and consequences of Lord Northcliffe	311
Other developments	315
Educational developments	316
The Cross Commission	317
The Bryce Commission	318
Technical education	318
Creation of the board of education	320
New universities and university colleges	321
Free libraries	322
Art in convalescence	322
Architecture	323
Arts and crafts, and painting	325
Multiplication of art galleries	326
Music	327
Literature	328
Drama	328
Learned works	329
Poetry	330
Novels	331
Ideas: Imperialism	331
Decadence	333
Social crusade	333
Nationalism in Ireland, Scotland, and Wales	335
Costume	337
Women's emancipation	339
Shortening of working hours	340
Foundation of the National Trust	340

XI. THE UNIONIST DECLINE

Character of Edward VII	342
The civil list; the royal title	344
The war: policy of concentration camps	345
'Methods of barbarism'	346
Peace of Vereeniging	347
Death of Rhodes	348
Hicks Beach's finance	349
End of 'splendid isolation'	350
Alliance with Japan	352
Salisbury resigns: his character	353
The Balfour cabinet	354
Education Act of 1902	355
Wyndham's Irish policies	358
Licensing Act of 1904	360
Committee of Imperial Defence	361
Cawdor-Fisher naval reforms	363
The Anglo-French Entente	365
The first Morocco crisis	369
Fiscal controversy: the fourth colonial conference	371
Ritchie repeals the corn-duty	372
Chamberlain declares for imperial preference	373
Break-up and reconstruction of the cabinet	374
The 'half-sheet of note-paper'	376
The Chinese labour policy	376
The Taff Vale Case	378
Unemployed Workmen Act 1905	379
Balfour resigns, and his party leave office	381
Imperial episodes of the time	381

XII. EDWARDIAN LIBERALISM

Character of Campbell-Bannerman	384
His cabinet	385
Unionist use of the House of Lords	386
Retirement of Chamberlain	389
The settlement of South Africa	389
Trade Disputes Act	391
Birrell's Education Bill	392
Land Bills	393
Campbell-Bannerman's resolutions against the Lords	393
Merchant Shipping Act 1906 and Patents Act 1907	394
Haldane's army reforms	395
Asquith's budgets	396
The militant suffragists	397
Military conversations with France	399
The Anglo-German naval question	401
Entente with Russia	402
The fifth colonial conference	405

Death of Campbell-Bannerman	406
Character of Asquith	407
Start of old age pensions	408
Lords reject the Licensing Bill	409
The Bosnian crisis	410
The Kaiser's Daily Telegraph interview	411
The naval alarm of 1909	412
The Lloyd George budget of 1909	414
The lords reject the budget	417
General election of January 1910	418
The dispute over 'guarantees'	419
Introduction of the Parliament Bill	420
Death of Edward VII	420

XIII. HEADING FOR CATASTROPHE

Accession of George V	422
The constitutional conference	422
The Parliament Bill and the Opposition alternatives	424
General Election of December 1910	427
The revolt of the 'Die-hards'	428
Passage of the Parliament Act	430
Anglo-German naval rivalry	432
The Agadir crisis	433
Lloyd George's Mansion House speech	434
Controversy between war office and admiralty	435
Italy attacks Turkey and seizes Tripoli	436
The great strike movement of 1911-12	437
Seamen's strike: dock and transport strikes	440
General railway strike	441
London dock dispute of 1912	443
Payment of members	444
National Insurance Act	445
Change in the Unionist leadership	446
The Declaration of London	447
Difficulties with Russia over Persia	449
The Third Home Rule Bill	450
Ulster opposition	452
Its organization under Carson: the Volunteers	453
Asquith's vacillating attitude	454
Bonar Law's 'Blenheim pledge'	455
The Marconi affair	456
Extension of suffragist militancy	459
The Haldane mission to Berlin	461
Naval dispositions: Franco-British exchange of letters	462
The Balkan Alliance	463
The first Balkan War	464
London ambassadors' conference	466
The second Balkan War	468
Germany's war preparations	469

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xv

Grey's negotiations with Lichnowsky	471
Further Irish developments	472
Fruitless negotiations	474
The Irish (National) Volunteers	475
Government's amending proposals	476
The Curragh episode	477
The Larne gun-running	479
Lord Murray of Elibank's negotiation	480
The Buckingham Palace conference	480
The Howth gun-running	481
Germany's further war preparations	481
Interview between Moltke and Conrad	482
Russo-British naval conversations	483
Colonel House's mission	484
The Murders at Serajevo	485
Austro-Hungarian ultimatum to Serbia	486
The negotiations preceding the war	487
Disagreements in the British cabinet	489
German ultimatum to Russia	490
The question of naval operations in the Channel	490
The question of Belgian neutrality	491
The British cabinet still wavers	492
German ultimatum to Belgium	493
Grey's speech in parliament	493
Redmond's speech	494
British ultimatum to Germany	495
Reflections on causes and effects	495

XIV. ECONOMICS AND INSTITUTIONS, 1901-14

Comparative populations	498
Changes in birth-rates and death rates	499
Stop in the growth of wealth per head	500
Upward tendency in prices	502
Trade figures	503
Comparisons with Germany and America	503
The case of steel	504
The Cunard subsidy	505
The first British census of production	506
Technological changes	507
Electric traction	508
Effects of transport on housing	509
Motor-cars; aeroplanes; wireless telegraphy	510
Agriculture	511
Problems of poverty in the towns	513
The urban 'labourer'	514
The Trade Boards Act 1909	515
Labour exchanges and unemployment insurance	516
Local government board's hostility to progress	517

The poor law problem	517
The town planning problem	518
Infants' welfare centres	519
The National Insurance Act	519
Prison reform	520
Municipal and local advances	521
Fisher's reforms in the navy	521
Fleet dispositions	522
The reasons for the Dreadnought	522
The navy's lack of a general staff	523
Other naval problems	524
Haldane's reforms in the army	525
The Committee of Imperial Defence	525
Table analysing the growth of expenditure after 1900	526

XV. MENTAL AND SOCIAL ASPECTS, 1901-14

A new impulse of idealism	527
State of organized religion	527
The churches and the labour movement	528
The St. Aldwyn commission on church discipline	529
Church schools	530
Welsh disestablishment	530
Growth of tolerance in religious thought	531
The Press changes	532
Consummation of the Harmsworth revolution	532
Northcliffe buys The Times	534
The race for circulations	534
Re-assuring features	535
Rapid progress in education	536
Secondary schools	536
Universities	537
The Workers' Educational Association	538
Ruskin Hall and the labour movement	538
The reform of school buildings	539
Architecture	540
Painting	542
The National Art Collections Fund	543
Music	543
The recording of English folk-song	544
The rise of the British school of composers	545
Literature	545
The new English drama	546
Reforms in dramatic representation	547
Novels	548
Poetry	549
Changes in the written language	550
Learned books	551
Science: disturbing effect of new discoveries	551

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xvii

Subversion and constriction	553
Impulses of 'escape'	553
The Boy Scout movement	554
Costume	554
Social life	555
The Gorell commission on divorce law	556
A period of germination	557

APPENDIXES

A. Gladstone's Attitude to Home Rule before the General Election of 1885	558
B. The Private Background of Parnell's Career	564
C. Questions of Foreign Policy	567
BIBLIOGRAPHY	576
LISTS OF CABINETS, 1870-1914	606
INDEX	615