

Contents

CHAPTER 1.	Introduction and Background Information on Anorexia Nervosa	1
	Purpose of This Manual	1
	Overview of Anorexia Nervosa in Adolescents	3
	Outcomes for Patients with Anorexia Nervosa	10
	Summary	11
CHAPTER 2.	Family-Based Treatment for Anorexia Nervosa	13
	Specific Review of Family Therapy Literature	13
	Family-Based Treatment and the Evolution of This Manual	16
	Introduction to Family-Based Treatment	21
	Appropriate Candidates for This Therapy	24
	Who Is Qualified to Use This Manual?	27
	The Treatment Team	27
	Summary	29
CHAPTER 3.	Phase I: Initial Evaluation and Setting Up Treatment	34
	Evaluation and Assessment of Adolescents with Anorexia Nervosa	34
	Setting Up Treatment	44
	Summary	48
CHAPTER 4.	Session 1: The First Face-to-Face Meeting	49
	Weighing the Patient	51
	Greeting the Family in a Sincere but Grave Manner	53
	Taking a History That Engages Each Family Member in the Process	54
	Separating the Illness from the Patient	56

Emphasizing the Seriousness of the Illness and the Difficulty in Recovering	59
Charging the Parents with the Task of Weight Restoration	61
Preparing for the Next Session's Family Meal and Ending the Session	63
End-of-Session Review	63
Common Questions for Session 1	63
CHAPTER 5. Session 1 in Action		67
Clinical Background	68
Weighing the Patient	68
Greeting the Family in a Sincere but Grave Manner	68
Taking a History That Engages Each Family Member in the Process	70
Separating the Illness from the Patient	76
Emphasizing the Seriousness of the Illness and the Difficulty in Recovering (and Continuing to Separate the Illness from the Patient)	78
Charging the Parents with the Task of Weight Restoration	80
Preparing for the Next Session's Family Meal and Ending the Session	82
CHAPTER 6. Session 2: The Family Meal		84
Weighing the Patient	85
Taking a History and Observing the Family Patterns during Food Preparation, Food Serving, and Family Discussions about Eating, Especially as They Relate to the Patient	85
Helping Parents Convince Their Child to Eat More Than She Is Prepared to, or Helping to Set Parents on Their Way to Working Out How They Can Best Go about Helping Their Child Gain Weight	87
Aligning the Patient with Her Siblings for Support Outside Mealtimes	90
Closing the Session	91
End-of-Session Review	92
Common Questions for Session 2	92
CHAPTER 7. Session 2 in Action		96
Clinical Background	97
Weighing the Patient	97
Taking a History and Observing the Family Patterns during Food Preparation, Food Serving, and Family Discussions about Eating, Especially as They Relate to the Patient	97
Helping Parents Convince Their Child to Eat More Than She Is Prepared to, or Helping to Set Parents on Their Way to Working Out How They Can Best Go about Helping Their Child Gain Weight	110
Supporting the Child's Autonomy and Adolescent Development	118
Closing the Session	121

CHAPTER 8.	The Remainder of Phase I (Sessions 3–10)	122
	Weighing the Patient at the Beginning of Each Session	123
	Directing, Redirecting, and Focusing the Therapeutic Discussion on Food and Eating Behaviors and Their Management until Food, Eating, and Weight Behaviors and Concerns Are Relieved	125
	Discussing, Supporting, and Helping the Parental Dyad's Efforts at Weight Restoration	127
	Discussing, Supporting, and Helping the Family to Evaluate Efforts of Siblings to Help Their Affected Sister	128
	Continuing to Modify Parental and Sibling Criticisms	130
	Continuing to Distinguish the Adolescent Patient and Her Interests from Those of Anorexia Nervosa	132
	Reviewing Progress with the Treatment Team	133
	Common Questions for Sessions 3–10	135
CHAPTER 9.	Session 8 in Action	148
	Clinical Background	149
	Weighing the Patient at the Beginning of Each Session	149
	Discussing, Supporting, and Helping the Parental Dyad's Efforts at Weight Restoration	151
	Directing, Redirecting, and Focusing the Therapeutic Discussion on Food and Eating Behaviors and Their Management until Food, Eating, and Weight Behaviors and Concerns Are Relieved	153
	Continuing to Modify Parental and Sibling Criticisms	158
	Continuing to Distinguish the Adolescent Patient and Her Interests from Those of Anorexia Nervosa	161
	Discussing, Supporting, and Helping the Family to Evaluate Efforts of Siblings to Help Their Affected Sister	166
	Closing All Sessions with a Recounting of Progress	176
CHAPTER 10.	Beginning Phase II: Helping the Adolescent Eat on Her Own (Sessions 11–16)	177
	Summary of Phase II	177
	How the Therapist Assesses the Family's Readiness for Phase II	179
	How the Treatment Team Changes in Phase II	180
	Weighing the Patient	181
	Continuing to Support and Assist the Parents in Management of Eating Disorder Symptoms until the Adolescent Is Able to Eat Well on Her Own	182
	Assisting the Parents and Adolescent in Negotiating the Return of Control of Eating Disorder Symptoms to the Adolescent	183
	Encouraging the Family to Examine Relationships between Adolescent Issues and the Development of Anorexia Nervosa in Their Adolescent	184

Continuing to Modify Parental and Sibling Criticism of the Patient, Especially in Relation to the Task of Returning Control of Eating to the Patient	185
Continuing to Assist Siblings in Supporting Their Ill Sister	186
Continuing to Highlight the Differences between the Adolescent's Own Ideas and Needs and Those of Anorexia Nervosa	187
Closing Sessions with Positive Support	187
End-of-Session Review	188
Common Questions for Phase II	188
Concluding Phase II	191
CHAPTER 11. Phase II in Action	192
Clinical Background	192
Weighing the Patient	193
Continuing to Support and Assist the Parents in Management of Eating Disorder Symptoms until the Adolescent Is Able to Eat Well on Her Own	194
Assisting the Parents and Adolescent in Negotiating the Return of Control of Eating Disorder Symptoms to the Adolescent	196
Continuing to Highlight the Differences between the Adolescent's Own Ideas and Needs and Those of Anorexia Nervosa	200
Encouraging the Family to Examine Relationships between Adolescent Issues and the Development of Anorexia Nervosa in Their Adolescent	204
Closing Sessions with Positive Support	207
CHAPTER 12. Starting Phase III: Adolescent Issues (Sessions 17–20)	208
Readiness for Phase III	209
Primer on Adolescent Development and Anorexia Nervosa	211
Teamwork in Phase III	213
Reviewing Adolescent Issues with the Family and Modeling Problem Solving of These Types of Issues	214
Involving the Family in "Review" of Issues	215
Delineating and Exploring Adolescent Themes	216
Checking on How Much the Parents Are Doing as a Couple	217
Planning for Future Issues	218
Terminating Treatment	218
Common Questions for Phase III	220
CHAPTER 13. Phase III in Action	221
Clinical Background	221
Reviewing Adolescent Issues with the Family and Modeling Problem Solving of These Types of Issues	224

Involving the Family in "Review" of Issues	228
Delineating and Exploring Adolescent Themes	231
Checking on How Much the Parents Are Doing as a Couple	236
Planning for Future Issues	239
Summarizing the Session	241
CHAPTER 14. Summary of a Completed Case	242
Case Illustration	242
Clinical Issues and Summary	255
CHAPTER 15. Where Are We Going from Here?:	256
Training, Dissemination, Clinical Practice, and Research
Training	256
Dissemination and Implementation of Family-Based Treatment
in Clinical Settings	259
Next Steps in Research for Family-Based Treatment	264
Family-Based Treatment and Advocacy	265
References	267
Index	281