1. Introduction, 3
2. Philosophical Preliminaries, 9
 - 2.1 Introduction, 9
 - 2.2 Strategies for Producing New Ideas, 9
 - 2.3 Strategies for Theory Assessment, 12
 - 2.4 Strategies for Anomaly Resolution and Change in Scope, 13
 - 2.5 Descriptive, Hypothetical or Normative Strategies? 15
 - 2.6 Metascientific Vocabulary, 17
 - 2.7 Stages and Strategies, 21
3. The Problem of Heredity, 24
4. Historical Introduction, 34
 - 4.1 Introduction, 34
 - 4.2 A Note on Mendel, 39
 - 4.3 Rediscovery of Mendel's Work, 42
 - 4.4 Bateson and the Emergence of Genetics, 46
5. Mendelism, 1900-1903, 49
 - 5.1 Introduction, 49
 - 5.2 Component 1. Unit-characters, 52
 - 5.3 Component 2. Differentiating Pairs of Characters, 54
 - 5.4 Component 3. Interfield Connection to Cytology, 55
 - 5.5 Component 4. Dominance-recessiveness, 56
 - 5.6 Component 5. Segregation, 57
 - 5.7 Component 6. Explanations of Dihybrid Crosses, 60
 - 5.8 Additional Claims, 61
 - 5.9 Relations between Domain and Theoretical Components, 62
 - 5.10 Conclusion, 63

6. Unit-Characters, Pairs, and Dominance, 65
 - 6.1 Introduction, 65
 - 6.2 Changes to Component 1: Unit-characters, 65
 - 6.3 Components 2 and 4: Paired Allelomorphs and Dominance-recessiveness, 68
 - 6.4 Strategies: Complicate, Specialize, Add, Delete, 73

7. Boveri-Sutton Chromosome Theory, 80
 - 7.1 Introduction, 80
 - 7.2 Weismann and Nineteenth-Century Cytology, 80
 - 7.3 Boveri-Sutton Chromosome Theory, 1903-1904, 83
 - 7.4 Sex Chromosomes, 89
 - 7.5 Assessments of the Chromosome Theory, 1906-1910, 90
 - 7.6 Strategy of Using Interrelations, 94
 - 7.7 Conclusion, 97

8. Tests of Segregation, 98
 - 8.1 Introduction, 98
 - 8.2 Cuénot's 2:1 Ratios, 99
 - 8.3 Strategy of Delineate and Alter, 103
 - 8.4 Castle and Contamination, 108
 - 8.5 Strategies for Resolving Anomalies, 113

9. Reduplication, Linkage, and Mendel's Second Law, 120
 - 9.1 Introduction, 120
 - 9.2 The Reduplication Hypothesis, 121
 - 9.3 Strategies, including Delineate and Alter, 125
 - 9.4 Morgan and Sex Linkage, 132
 - 9.5 Strategies: Interrelations and Levels of Organization, 136
 - 9.6 Assessments: Reduplication versus Linkage, 138

10. The Chromosome Theory and Mutation, 143
 - 10.1 Introduction, 143
 - 10.2 Mapping and Non-disjunction, 144
 - 10.3 Bateson's Objections to the Chromosome Theory, 150
 - 10.4 Castle and the Debate about Linearity, 153
 - 10.5 Modularity and Alternative Hypotheses, 157
 - 10.6 The Problem of Mutation, 158
 - 10.7 Strategies: Using Interrelations and an Analog Model, 161

11. Unit-characters to Factors to Genes, 168
 - 11.1 Introduction, 168
 - 11.2 Conceptual Problems, 170
 - 11.3 Symbolic Representations, 171
 - 11.4 Terminology, 178
 - 11.5 A New Theoretical Entity and Its Properties, 183
 - 11.6 Strategies for Finding and Solving Conceptual Problems, 188

12. Exemplars, Diagrams, and Diagnosis, 191
 - 12.1 Introduction, 191
 - 12.2 Morgan's Exposition of the Theory of the Gene, 192
 - 12.3 Exemplars and Diagrams, 195
 - 12.4 Exemplars and Explanation, 196
 - 12.5 Monster and Model Anomalies, 199
 - 12.6 Diagnosing and Fixing Faults in the Theory, 201

13. Genetics and Other Fields, 205
 - 13.1 Introduction, 205
 - 13.2 Solved and Unsolved Problems in 1926, 206
 - 13.3 Genetics and Embryology, 208
 - 13.4 The Chemical Nature of the Gene, 210
 - 13.5 Genetics and Evolution, 212
 - 13.6 Strategies: Interrelations and Levels of Organization, 218
 - 13.7 Conclusion, 224

14. Summary of Strategies from the Historical Case, 226
 - 14.1 Unit-characters to Genes, 226
 - 14.2 Multiple Factors and Multiple Alleles, 227
 - 14.3 Interfield Connection, 229
 - 14.4 Dominance-recessiveness, 230
 - 14.5 Segregation, 232
 - 14.6 Mendel's Second Law and Linkage, 235
 - 14.7 The New Component of Mutation, 238
 - 14.8 Additional Strategies from the Case, 238
 - 14.9 Conclusion, 242

15. General Strategies for Theory Change, 243
 - 15.1 Strategies for Producing New Ideas, 243
 - 15.2 Strategies for Theory Assessment, 257
 - 15.3 Strategies for Anomaly Resolution and Change of Scope, 269
 - 15.4 Conclusion, 275
