

Contents

Contributors	vii
Introduction Albert Breton, Gianluigi Galeotti, Pierre Salmon, and Ronald Wintrobe	1
Part I Democracy, the market, and the law	9
1 Democratic stability as a self-enforcing equilibrium Barry R. Weingast	11
2 Democracy, competition, and the principle of Isonomia : An economic analysis of the political exchange as an incomplete contract Michele Grillo	47
3 Constitutional democracy: An interpretation Dennis C. Mueller	64
4 Necessary and sufficient conditions for a viable democracy Peter Bernholz	88
Part II Democracy and economic growth	105
5 Government spending and economic growth under democracy and dictatorship José Antonio Cheibub and Adam Przeworski	107
6 Rent seeking and redistribution under democracy versus dictatorship Ronald Wintrobe	125
7 Democratic governments, economic growth, and income distribution Pierre Salmon	144

	Part III Democratic deficiencies and possible improvements	161
8	Democracy and the public machinery: The case of the headless Leviathan Gianluigi Galeotti	163
9	Democracy and empowerment Albert Breton and Margot Breton	176
10	Political participation, voting, and economic policy: Three problems of modern democracies Luigi Campiglio	196
	Part IV Democratic expectations	209
11	Components of the democratic ideal Ian Shapiro	211
12	Democracy on the margin Russell Hardin	249
	Index	267