INTRODUCTION	1
The Purpose of This Introduction.	1
Section I. Why and How the History of Analytic Philosophy?	2
1. The Structure of the Work.	2
1.1. The Objective.	2
1.2. The Three Musketeers and the Magnificent Seven.	3
1.3. The Selection.	5
1.4. Deep Analysis.	6
2. Analytical Philosophy: A Tentative Definition.	8
2.1. Anti-Dummett.	8
2.2. Dummett's Fallacy by Defining Analytic Philosophy.	10
2.3. Other Things that Analytic Philosophy is not.	11
2.4. What It Is?	13
2.5. Tübingen Nightmares.	15
3. Other Characteristics of Analytic Philosophy.	16
3.1. The State of the Art.	16
3.2. Mind Games.	16
3.3. The 'Jena Connection'.	19
3.4. Analytic Philosophy and University Practice.	20
3.5. The Foundationalistic Turn.	22
3.6. Revolution in Philosophy?	23
Section II. Why Understanding?	25
1. Cognising.	25
1.1. Why Understanding?	26
2. The Theory of Understanding.	27
2.1. Understanding as Possessing.	27
2.2. Frege's Making Double Plato's Fallacy.	28
2.3. The Solution: 'مفنى' → 'הנהיג' → 'κατάληψις'.	29
3. Historical Review.	31
3.1. Modi Cogitandi .	31
3.2. Russell.	32
3.3. Two Understandings?	35
3.3. Gareth Evans.	35
3.4. The Perestroika Philosophers.	37
4. The True Analytism.	39
4.1. Three Mistakes in Understanding Understanding.	39
4.2. The 'Analytical Form'.	41
4.3. The Analytical 'Love of Wisdom'.	43

Section III. The Origins of Analytical Philosophy.	44
1. Plato's Project.	44
1.1. Does 'Philosophy' Rest on a Mistake?	44
1.2. Philosophy's Fatal Bifurcation.	45
1.3. Plato's Discovery and its Falsification.	46
2. Aristotle and the Rise of Professional Philosophy.	48
2.1. The Discovery of Two a priori Disciplines.	49
2.2. Philosophy and Mathematics.	50
2.3. What 'Philosophers' always Wanted to do, but Were Ashamed to Say It.	51
2.4. Why Logic?	53
2.5. The Principles.	55
2.6. The Hellenistic Counter-Revolution.	56
2.6.1. The Precise Formulation of the Peirastic Dialectics.	56
2.6.2. Truth-Foundationalism.	57
3. History of the Idea of Analytism.	58
3.1. Analytism in Mathematics and Philosophy. 'Authentic' and 'Real' Analytism.	58
3.2. Who is the Father? And Who the Son?	59
3.3. The Calculus Revolution ( arte combinatoria ).	61
3.4. What Analysis Is?	62
3.5. Analysis and Philosophy.	63
4. Descartes' Revolution in Philosophy.	65
4.1. What Philosophy is?	65
4.2. 'I' as res cogitans , and its Varieties.	67
4.3. Free from Gaps Analytism.	67
4.4. Analysis, and Indefinables.	68
5. Leibniz' Alternative.	69
5.1. Philosophia teutonica .	69
5.2. Leibniz' 'Philosophical Grammar'.	70
5.3. Analytical Peirastic.	71
5.4. Its Connection with philosophia teutonica .	72
5.5. The Counter-Reformation.	73
5.6. Expressing.	74
6. Logica Nova .	75
6.1. The Emergence of Philosophical Logic.	75
6.2. The Nature of Judgement.	76
6.3. Arnauld and the Project for 'Speculative Grammar'.	76
6.4. The New Logic.	77
7. Kant's Luck.	78
7.1. The Rediscovery of Dialectics.	78
7.2. Kant's Deepness.	79
7.3. Philosophical Logic.	80
8. Hegel's Neglected Logic.	82
8.1. Hegel's Fallacy.	82
8.2. Hegel's Mereology.	82
8.3. History of Mereology as a Kind of Analytism.	83

8.4. The Multitude in Transition.	86
8.5. Logic and Metaphysics by Hegel and the early Analysts.	87
9. The Post-Hegelians.	88
9.1. Schleiermacher.	88
9.2. Trendelenburg.	89
9.3. Lotze's Innovations in Logic.	91
9.4. Final Remarks on Plato's Theory of Ideas.	93
9.5. Karl Marx.	94
9.6. The Unsuccessful Project for a Revival of the Analytism in the German Philosophy.	96
10. Recalcitrant 'Real' Analysts.	97
10.1. Brentano's Alternative.	97
10.2. Bradley (not Frege) as the True Grand-Father of Analytic Philosophy.	99
Section IV. Frege and Analytic Philosophy.	102
1. Novum Organum .	102
1.1. Frege's Theory of Proof: Free from Gaps (of Intuition) Logical Deduction.	102
1.2. Frege's Copernican Revolution in Logic.	104
1.3. Criticism of Natural Language.	105
1.4. The new novum organum .	106
2. Technical Philosophy.	108
2.1. Frege and Kant.	108
2.2. Creativity.	109
2.3. Logical Analysis (Function and Concept, Instead of Subject and Predicate.)	110
2.4. Numbers.	111
2.5. Concepts.	112
2.6. Inference.	113
2.7. The Paradigm of Analytic Philosophy.	114
3. Philosophy of Logic.	115
3.1. Frege's Logic as Form and Content Logic.	115
3.2. Frege's Logic as a Science of Truth.	117
3.3. Frege's Jena Idealism.	118
3.4. Logic as a Discipline of Squeezing the 'Logical Juice'.	120
4. Philosophy of Mind and of Language.	121
4.1. Thoughts.	121
4.2. Grasping Thoughts.	121
4.3. Serious Language.	122
4.4. Sense and Meaning.	123
4.5. Frege's 'Context Principle' and its Implications.	123
4.6. Frege's Aesthetic.	124
5. Frege's Metaphysics.	125
5.1. Frege's Vision of the Being Qua Being.	125
5.2. Criticism.	126
5.3. The Values, Preparing the Fall of the German Philosophy.	127

5.4. Judgement as Action.	130
5.5. Frege's Emotivism.	130
5.6. Frege's Logical Voluntarism.	131
5.7. Frege as a philosophus teutonicus .	133
6. Frege and Nazism.	135
Section V. Oxbridge Circles and Schools.	138
1. Cambridge and Abroad.	138
1.1. The 'Philosophical World War' and its Effects.	138
1.2. The Cambridge School.	139
1.3. The Vienna Circle.	140
1.4. The Freiburg School, and the Fall of the German Philosophy.	141
1.5. The Cambridge Circle, and Wittgenstein's Dissent.	142
1.6. The Second Cambridge Circle. Ramsey.	144
1.7. The Third Cambridge Circle.	147
1.8. The Warsaw School: 'Logical Anti-irrationalism'.	148
2. Ideological Dualism.	149
2.1. Manichaeian Philosophy.	149
2.2. Cambridge and Oxford.	151
2.3. The Change of England's Philosophical Capital.	153
3. Oxford as a Philosophical Mecca.	155
3.1. The Oxford School.	155
3.2. Disputatio in forma .	157
3.3. The 'Oxford Circle'.	158

CAMBRIDGE ANALYTICAL PHILOSOPHY	159
Chapter I. The Authentic Analytism (G. E. Moore).	161
1. Cambridge Esoteric Philosophy.	161
1.1. The New Philosophy as 'a Kind of Exquisite Purity'.	161
1.2. The Philosopher's Stone.	163
1.3. Moore's 'Logical Reformation'.	165
1.4. The Severe Analytic Turn.	167
2. Zurück zu Moore .	168
2.1. Moore and the Epigones.	168
2.2. Moore's Method.	170
2.3. Cultural Revolution.	171
2.4. Moore, and Descartes as 'Philosophical Ecologists'.	173
2.5. Cambridge as a Socratic Athens.	174
3. The Authentic Realism ('Analytism').	176
3.1. 'What on Earth means Kant with p '?	176
3.2. 'Philosophical Psychoanalysis'.	176
3.3. 'Analytical Hermeneutics'.	178
3.4. Moore as a Non-linguistic Philosopher.	179
3.5. Logical Fallacies.	180
3.6. Bona mens .	181
3.7. Minima Philosophia .	182
3.8. Tentative Metaphysics.	183
4. Moore's Basics.	176
4.1. Discovering Philosophical Logic via Kant.	184
4.2. Pluralism and Logical Atomism.	185
4.3. McTaggart's Influence.	186
4.4. Indefinables.	188
4.5. Εὐδαιμονία ἐστὶ θεωρητικῆ.	189
4.6. Ambiguities in Moore's Anti-Naturalism.	190
4.7. Moore's Mereology, and the Organic Unities.	191
4.8. First Theses of Moore's Philosophical Logic, and the Final Conversion of the New Look Philosophy.	192
4.9. The Limits of Reason.	193
5. Tractatus Logico-Ethicus .	194
5.1. Conceptual Confusions.	194
5.2. Differences in Opinion Eliminated.	195
5.3. Philosophy as Synthetic a priori .	196
5.4. Speculative Residua.	198
6. Enlargement of the Conceptual Scheme.	201
6.1. Moore's First Epistemology.	201
6.2. The Race for 'Doing Truth': Moore's Perspective.	201
6.3. Realist Theory of Truth.	203
6.4. Case Studies in Analytical Hermeneutic.	204
7. First Theses of Analytical Scholastic, and the 'Change of Human Character'	205
7.1. Why the Scheme?	206
7.2. Classification of the Philosophical Disciplines.	206

7.3. Common Sense as an Arbiter for Sound Philosophy.	208
7.4. Cognitive Relations.	210
7.5. Propositions, and Ways of Knowing (Varieties of Understanding).	211
7.6. Moore's 'that'.	213
8. The Scheme of the Things in the World.	214
8.1. Moore's Premise.	214
8.2. Material Objects.	216
8.3. Space, Time, Infinity.	218
8.4. Real.	220
8.5. Imagining.	221
8.6. Belief as a Propositional Attitude.	222
8.7. Truth.	224
8.8. Moore's Being qua Being.	225
8.9. Universals.	226
8.10. Moore's 'Pure' Universals.	227
9. The Middle Moore.	228
9.1. Criticism of Sense-Data.	228
9.2. The Relations of the Material Objects to Mind.	229
9.3. Existence.	231
9.4. Intrinsic and External .	232
9.5. Wittgenstein and Ramsey.	233
10. The Later Moore.	235
10.1. Wittgenstein's Influence and the 'Ordinary Usage' Method.	235
10.2. The Assertion Fallacy.	237
10.3. First Attacks on Philosophical Logic.	238
10.4. In Defence of the Ordinary Usage.	240
11. Moore's Archimedean Point.	242
11.1. We Cannot Prove It.	243
11.2. Certain Truths.	244
11.3. Moore's Proof of the External World.	245
11.4. Self-Criticism.	246
11.5. Philosophical Infidel.	247
Chapter II. The New Method as a Logic (Russell).	249
1. The Beginning.	249
1.1. Analytical Philosophy as 'Russell's Movement in Philosophy'.	249
1.2. Moore Converts Russell to Neo-Hegelianism.	249
1.3. The Logic of Sciences (Later Mixed with the Idea of Philosophical Logic).	250
1.4. On 4 or 5 July 1898 Moore averted Russell from Neo-Hegelianism.	251
1.5. The Leibniz Connection.	254
2. The Fregean Turn.	255
2.1. From Mereology, to Truth-functionality.	255
2.2. Resolving the Problems of Infinity, Combining Cantor with Frege.	257
2.3. Theory of Denoting—Infinity and Wholes.	257
2.4. Forms of Denoting.	258

2.5. Paradoxes Emerged.	259
2.6. The (Ramified) Theory of Types.	260
2.7. Paradoxes Explained.	261
3. Theory of Descriptions.	262
3.1. The Results of the Peano-Fregean Turn.	262
3.2. TDn versus TDs.	263
3.3. The Realistic Turn.	265
3.4. Russell Wrongly Interpreted.	266
3.5. The History of Inventing TDs.	267
3.6. Historical Precedents of TDs.	268
4. Three Sources of the Theory.	270
4.1. Bradley.	270
4.2. Frege.	273
4.2.1. TDs as a Russellian Interpretation of Frege's Quantification's Technique.	273
4.2.2. Frege's and Russell's Quantification.	274
4.2.3. Frege's Mediativ, and Analytical Immediacy.	276
4.3. Moore: Three Unnoticed Directions of Influence.	278
4.3.1. Constructive, Selective Definitions.	279
4.3.2. The Race for 'Doing God and Truth': Russell's Perspective.	280
4.3.3. TDs as a Formal Paraphrase of Moore's Method.	281
5. The Point of TDs, and its Criticism.	282
5.1. Knitting of the Tissue of Discourse.	282
5.2. Multiple Relation Theory of Judgement.	283
5.3. A Resulting Ambiguity.	285
5.4. The Varieties of Criticism, and their Relevance.	286
6. Logical Atomism.	288
6.1. Why 'Logical Atomism'?	288
6.2. The Nature of Russell's Logical Atomism.	290
6.3. Three Forms of Logical Atomism.	291
7. Logical Forms.	293
7.1. Russell's Grundgedanke .	293
7.2. They Help to Convey Information.	295
7.3. Epistemological Forms (Propositional Attitudes).	296
7.4. Symbolism versus Language.	298
7.5. Logical Grammar.	300
7.6. Explicating Russell's Basic Philosophical Logic.	301
8. Varieties of Logical Reductionism.	303
8.1. Scientific Philosophy.	303
8.2. The Program for Logical Reductionism.	303
8.3. Calculus with 'Invariant Units'.	305
8.4. Russell's Philosophical Logics.	306
8.5. The 'New Logic'.	307
8.6. The Scope of Russell's Analysis.	309
9. Philosophy of Mathematics.	311
9.1. Thorough Deductivism.	311

9.2. Was Wittgenstein Russell's Frankenstein?	312
9.3. Russell's Structuralism (Philosophical Maps, Philosophical Photography, and other Perspicuities).	313
9.4. Royce, and Wittgenstein.	315
10. What is Philosophy?	316
10.1. The a priori Disciplines.	316
10.2. Methodological Doubt.	317
10.3. The Progressive 'Minute Philosophy'.	318
10.4. The Abstract Truth and the Philosophical Talent.	319
10.5. Philosophy and Physics.	321
11. Epistemology and Ontology.	322
11.1. Why Theory of Knowledge?	322
11.2. Russell's Encyclopaedic Program.	323
11.3. The Quest for Certainty.	325
11.4. History and Function of Russell's Acquaintance.	326
11.5. Russell's Constructionalism.	327
11.6. Matter as a Series of Sense-Data.	328
11.7. The New Theory of Matter as a New World-View.	329
12. Russell's Unwritten Philosophy.	331
12.1. Two Projects for Truth-Searching.	331
12.2. Insight and Reason.	333
12.3. Persons and Infinity.	335
12.4. Union with the Universe: Wisdom.	337
12.5. Can a 'Logical Machine' be Happy?	339
Chapter III. Logical Meditations (Wittgenstein).	341
1. Wittgenstein & Wittgensteiniana.	341
1.1. The Rationality of Wittgensteiniana.	341
1.2. Wittgenstein's Philosophy as Fragmented.	343
1.3. Trick Lock or Fish.	344
1.4. The Unity—Logical Anti-Physicalism.	346
1.5. Wittgenstein as an Examiner and Exorcist.	348
1.6. An Obsession, to be Lived Through.	350
1.7. The Method of 'One Wittgenstein'.	352
1.8. The Significance of T and PI,URFM,I .	355
1.9. The Integral Grundgedanke .	357
2. Logical Meditations.	358
2.1. Philosophical 'Medicinal Leech'.	358
2.2. Original Philosophical Intuitions.	359
2.3. Eliminating Logical Constants, and other Logical Objects.	361
2.4. Norwegian Wood.	362
2.5. Showing/Saying.	364
2.6. Additional Remark on Inscrutability.	366
2.7. Wittgenstein's Logical Tabu, and its Circulous Overcoming.	366
3. The Logical Grid.	368
3.1. Wittgenstein's Structuralism.	368

3.2. Picturing.	369
3.3. Forms, and Objects.	370
3.4. Way.	372
3.5. Four Ways.	373
3.6. Structuralism and Atomism.	374
3.7. Wittgenstein's Philosophical 'Egg-cell'.	376
3.8. Necessity, Analyticity, and Logic.	377
3.9. Sachverhalt , and the Unicity of Language.	379
4. Tractarian Metaphysics and Epistemology.	381
4.1. The Metaphysical Basis of the Tractatus .	381
4.2. Wittgenstein as an Epistemologist.	382
4.3. Wittgenstein's Seven Arts.	385
4.4. Logical Nets versus Data.	389
4.5. Calculation and Creating/Contemplation.	391
4.6. Elucidation and Explanation.	392
4.7. Wonder at Data.	394
5. The Creativity Turn.	395
5.1. PI and the Tractatus —Unity and Diversity.	395
5.2. Beyond the Truth-Conditions.	396
5.3. Philosophical Physiognomic.	396
5.4. Faces in Album.	398
5.5. The Place of the Philosophy of Mathematics in Wittgenstein's System.	399
5.6. Philosophy, Aesthetics and Mathematics.	400
6. Dynamic Logic.	402
6.1. The Marxist Impact.	402
6.2. Was Wittgenstein a Historical Materialist?	404
6.3. Linguistic Acts.	405
6.4. Pragmatics.	406
6.5. Copying the Multiplicity.	407
6.6. Rule Inculcation.	409
6.7. Infinity.	410
6.8. Becoming and Interpreting.	411
7. Was Wittgenstein a Philosopher of Language?	411
7.1. A Question of Style.	411
7.2. What Is Language?	413
7.3. Language, or Symbols?	414
7.4. Wittgenstein's logica nova .	416
7.5. Nets and Scaffoldings.	417
7.6. Wittgenstein's bona mens .	419
8. One Method.	420
8.1. Wittgenstein's Reductionism.	420
8.2. Optical Realism.	422
8.3. Scientific Anti-Scientism.	423
8.4. Τρίτοσ ἀνθρώπος.	425
8.5. No Scepticism about Measuring.	426
8.6. Van Gogh.	428

8.7. The Scheme of the 'Two Wittgensteins'.	429
9. Beyond the 'Two Wittgensteins'.	430
9.1. Third Wittgenstein.	430
9.2. The New Wittgenstein as a Logical Monist.	431
9.3. The General Philosophical Form.	432
Chapter IV. Analytical Metaphysics (John Wisdom).	435
1. Interpretation, Analysis, and Incomplete Symbols.	436
1.2. Interpretation and Analysis.	437
1.3. The Business of Analytical Philosophers	438
1.4. Theory of Individuation.	439
1.5. Fictitious Entities.	439
2. Logical Constructions.	441
2.1. Stebbing's Constructions.	441
2.2. Wisdom's Program for Logical Constructions.	442
2.3. Ostentation, Instead of Reference.	443
2.4. The Tasks of Wisdom's Analysis.	445
2.5. Wisdom's Theory of Types.	446
2.6. Three Types of Analysis	446
2.7. Sketching versus Picturing.	447
2.8. Facts and Events.	449
2.9. Locating, without Referring.	450
3. Logical Constructing Applied.	452
3.1. What Analytic Philosophy Is?	452
3.2. Mental Facts.	453
3.3. Ownership of Mind by Body	454
3.4. Occasioning.	455
3.5. Analysing Freewill.	456
3.6. Perception.	457
3.7. Material Objects.	458
3.8. Truth.	460
4. The 'Deconstructivist' Turn.	461
4.1. What is New in the Puzzles?	461
4.2. Philosophical Statements.	463
4.3. Descriptive Metaphysics.	465
4.4. Types of Metaphysical Puzzles.	466
4.5. Metaphysics and Duplicationism.	468
5. Do we Know Other Minds?	469
5.1. The Philosophical Quasi-Doubt and its Therapy.	470
5.2. Contemplating a Possibility.	471
5.3. Structure of Philosophical Questions.	473
