

Contents

Foreword Ann Oakley	vii
Acknowledgements	xi
About the authors	xii
Contributors	xiii
1 Introducing systematic reviews David Gough, Sandy Oliver and James Thomas	1
2 Stakeholder perspectives and participation in reviews Rebecca Rees and Sandy Oliver	17
3 Commonality and diversity in reviews David Gough and James Thomas	35
4 Getting started with a review Sandy Oliver, Kelly Dickson and Mark Newman	66
5 Information management in reviews Jeff Brunton and James Thomas	83
6 Finding relevant studies Ginny Brunton, Claire Stansfield and James Thomas	107
7 Describing and analysing studies Sandy Oliver and Katy Sutcliffe	135
8 Quality and relevance appraisal Angela Harden and David Gough	153
9 Synthesis: Combining results systematically and appropriately James Thomas, Angela Harden and Mark Newman	179
10 Making a difference with systematic reviews Ruth Stewart and Sandy Oliver	227

11	Moving forward	245
	David Gough, Sandy Oliver and James Thomas
	Glossary	257
	References	263
	Index	282