

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	7
Chapter 1
Introduction	8
Chapter 2
Theoretical background	13
2.1 Fundamental problems in motor control	13
2.2 Theoretical perspectives of sport performance with emphasis on psychological processes	14
2.2.1 Schema theory and theory of ironic processes	14
2.2.2 Theory of information-transforming processes	15
2.2.3 Theory of perception-movement coupling	18
2.2.4 Action theory	18
2.3 Consequences of the theoretical perspectives	20
2.4 Theoretical background of mental training	22
2.5 Combining the hypothetical model with the mental skills	24
Chapter 3
Application of mental training	29
3.1 General aspects of application	29
3.2 Procedure	31
3.2.1 Instructing mental skills and work relationship	31
3.2.2 First contact and basic conditions	32
3.2.3 Beginning of inventarisation and decision about continuation	33
3.2.4 Giving information on mental training and roles	37
3.2.5 Processing the material, topographical and functional analysis	37
3.2.6 Goal setting, training plan, and evaluation	40
3.3 Processes between the sport psychologist and the athlete	42
3.3.1 Development of the work relation between the sport psychologist and the athlete	42
3.3.2 Mistakes and problems in the mental training and coping with work problems	44

Chapter 4
Field studies		49
4.1 Purpose of the field studies		49
4.2 Hypotheses		50
4.3 Retrospective study		53
4.3.1 Method		53
4.3.2 Results		55
4.4 Natural setting study		62
4.4.1 Method		63
4.4.2 Results		65
4.5 Summaries and discussions		70
4.5.1 Summary and discussion of sport performance		70
4.5.2 Summary and discussion of mental concepts		71
4.5.3 Summary and discussion of the supplemental factors on the use of mental skills in game preparation and during competitions		72
4.6 General discussion		75
Chapter 5
Conclusions, implications and recommendations		77
5.1 General conclusions		77
5.2 Conclusion for the reduction model		77
5.3 Conclusion for the hypothetical model		78
5.4 Strengths and limitations		81
5.4.1 Retrospective study		81
5.4.2 Natural setting study		82
5.5 Implications of the findings of the field studies		83
5.5.1 Implications for the world of sport		83
5.5.2 Implications for science		85
5.6 Recommendations		86
Chapter 6
Summary		88
6.1 English summary		88
6.2 Dutch summary (Samenvatting)		89
References		90
Appendix		95
Overview tables and figures		166