

Contents

General Editor's Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vii
List of contributors	xiii

---

Introduction: Italy and the Renaissance	1
John M. Najemy

---

1 Education and the emergence of a literate society	18
Robert Black
Literacy and the rise of the vernacular	18
Primary and secondary education	19
Latin and vernacular education	24
The revival of Latin, and humanist education	29
The triumph of humanist education	33

---

2 Humanism and the lure of antiquity	37
Carol Everhart Quillen
The passion for antiquity	37
Emergence of humanism: Padua and Florence	38
Francesco Petrarca	40
Humanism in Florence	42
Varieties of humanism: Naples, Venice, Milan, and Rome	47
Humanist communities	52
Humanist practice: annotation, translation, citation	54

---

3 Religion and the Church	59
David S. Peterson
Religion and the Renaissance	59
The Church in Italy	61
Italy without the popes	64
Papal schism and civic control of religion	69

A flawed recovery	71
Awaiting the deluge	76
<hr/>
4 Family and marriage: a socio-legal perspective	82
Julius Kirshner
Old and new perspectives	82
Legal framework	84
Patria potestas	86
Demographic framework	89
Marriage norms	90
Making marriage	91
Dowries	93
Living marriage	95
Termination of marriage	98
Inheritance	99
Conclusion	101
<hr/>
5 Bodies, disease, and society	103
Diane Owen Hughes
Bodies as social texts	103
Plague and syphilis	105
Jews, prostitutes, and the body social	110
Social contagion	117
<hr/>
6 The economy: work and wealth	124
Franco Franceschi
Prosperity or hard times?	124
Three cases of 'reconversion'	127
The origins of 'proto-industry' and the formation of 'economic regions'	131
The organization of work	134
The 'real economy' and the guild system	138
The distribution of wealth and its imbalances	140

---

7 The popolo	145
Andrea Zorzi
Popular associations and governments	146
Magnates and popolani	150
The popolo in Florence, Siena, Rome, and Genoa	152
The popolo minuto	156
Reaction against the popolo	157
Popular ideology and culture	159
Late revivals	162

---

8 The power of the elites: family, patronage, and the state	165
Dale Kent
Authority and attitudes: continuity and change	165
Defining the elites: size, wealth, office-holding, prestige	168
Issues of inclusion and exclusion: popolo and magnates	175
Personal bonds: the cement of elites and the basis of patronage	178
Patronage, politics, and the state	182

---

9 Governments and governance	184
John M. Najemy
Republics	185
Signorie	189
Territorial states	192
Functions of government	195
Public order and justice	196
Armies and war	198
Taxation and public finance	200
Diplomacy	203
The new paternalism	204

---

10 The South	208
David Abulafia
Is the South different?	208
The crisis of monarchic centralization	212
Spanish kings and French intruders	218
The southern Renaissance	224

---

11 Representations of power	226
Edward Muir
The power of perception	227
Vocabularies of power	231
Representing the pope	236
Representing the city	239
Representing the prince and court	242

---

12 Rethinking the Renaissance in the aftermath of Italy's crisis	246
Alison Brown
The crisis of 1494 and its impact on Renaissance culture	246
The new political realism	254
Renaissance culture in Italian courts	259
Further reading	267
Chronology	297
Maps	307
Index	313