

CONTENTS

Introduction, Zsuzsanna Toronyi and Judit Gazsi	7
PART ONE
TRADITIONS—NOW	15
Remembering the Past, Living the Present, Planning the Future, Alice Shalvi	17
Voluntary Work and Jewish Renewal: Observations on the Situation in Germany, Lara Dämmig	25
Esther and her Bag, Andrea Pető	35
PART TWO
GENDER AND RELIGION	49
The Meaning of Israel in Yiddish Poetry, Esther Jonas-Martin	51
Transforming Traditions: Halakhah, Women, and Kriat ha-Torah, Valérie Rhein	67
Life Stories of the Personal, Professional and Political: Orthodox Jewish Women Negotiating Work and Home, Chia Longman	75

PART THREE
GENDERED REMEMBERING	87
Fanny von Arnstein and her Biographer Hilde Spiel, Eleonore Lappin	89
Jelena Kon, Edit Jankov	105
An Untold Story about the Feminist Association, Andrea Pető	107
Finding Our/My History: The Case of Manya Wilbushewitz Shohat, Shulamit Reinharz	121
Johanna Bischitz, Katalin Gerő, and Budapest's Jewish Women's Association (1866–1943), Julia Richers	125
The Work of Ilka Gedő (1921–1985), István Hajdu	145
The Female Progressive Workshop: An Attempt at a Collective Biography, Borbála Juhasz	173
"You're the exception..." The First Jewish Women Psychoanalysts, Anna Borgos	179
The Jewish Woman as an Allegory: The Portrayal of Jewish Women in Hungarian Literature at the Turn of the Century, Miklós Konrád	195
Centropa and Women's Stories, Eszter Andor and Dóra Sárdi	217
Contributors	251

The transliteration of Hebrew and Yiddish terms is according to the system followed by the authors.