

6.	Two Legal Perspectives on Kafka	229
	On Reading Kafka Politically	230
	In Defense of Classical Liberalism	237
	The Grand Inquisitor and Other Social Theorists	247
7.	Penal Theory in Paradise Lost	251
	The Punishment of Satan and His Followers	257
	The Punishment of Man	259
	The Punishment of the Animals	266
 Part II. Legal Texts as Literary Texts
8.	Interpreting Contracts, Statutes, and Constitutions	273
	Interpretation Theorized	274
	What Can Law Learn from Literary Criticism?	276
	Chain Novels and Black Ink	319
	Interpretation as Translation	324
9.	Judicial Opinions as Literature	329
	Meaning, Style, and Rhetoric	329
	Aesthetic Integrity and the “Pure” versus the “Impure” Style	361
	Two Cultures	379
 Part III. How Else Might Literature Help Law?
10.	Literature as a Source of Background Knowledge for Law	389
	Arch of Triumph	390
	From Huxley to The Matrix	393
11.	Improving Trial and Appellate Advocacy	419
	Sherlock Holmes to the Rescue?	419
	Legal Narratology	424
	Fictional Depictions of Lawyers	446
	The Funeral Orations in Julius Caesar	450
12.	But Can Literature Humanize Law?	456
	Aesthetic versus Moralistic Literary Criticism	456
	Then Why Read Literature?	481

Part IV. The Regulation of Literature by Law
13. Protecting Nonwriters	497
Pornographic Fiction	497
Defamation by Fiction	511
14. Protecting (Other) Writers	518
What Is an “Author”?	518
Copyright, Plagiarism, and Creativity	520
Parody	536
Conclusion. Law and Literature: A Manifesto	545
Index	553