

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Notes on Collaborators	xiii
Introduction	xv
1 Subjective Affects: Surveying with Husserl, Shakespeare, and Derrida into the Twenty-first Century	1
Bryan Reynolds (with additional dialogue by George Light & Bryan Reynolds)
Key twentieth-century contributions briefly described:
subjectivity and reading	4
Shakespearean excursion I: why we can't get enough	19
Key twentieth-century contributions briefly continued:
différance and the proper name	39
Shakespearean excursion II: what's in a name?	51
2 The Masochistic Quest of Jean-Jacques Rousseau: Deleuze and Guattari to Transversal Poetics with(out) Baudrillard	83
Adam Bryx & Bryan Reynolds
Making sense of desire	87
Becoming a body without organs	94
Never enough	97
Performance anxiety	101
Fugitive desires (or mirror, mirror on the wall ...)	110
Subject matters of perspective	118
3 The Cartographic Impulse: Certeau's Transversality, Foucault's Panoptic Discourse, Cusa's Empiricism, and Google's New World	124
Joseph Fitzpatrick & Bryan Reynolds
Postmodern space: Certeau and Jameson	125
Foucault and panopticism	127
Places, spaces, and the evolution of maps	129
Panopticism, cartography, and the "utopian" city	132
Transversality and anamnesis	135

Perspective and the panoptic gaze	139
Transversal discourse	141
Replanning the WTC	146
The proposals	150
4 Fugitive Rehearsals: The Ferality of Kaspar Hauser, Playground Performances, and the Transversality of Children	162
Bryan Reynolds & Donovan Sherman
The emergence of Kasparspace	165
What is it like to be yourself?: Kaspar as epistemic conundrum	169
“The mere apparatus”: Peter of Hanover and the subjective properties of language	175
Futile representations: Kaspar, Kaspar , and Kaspars	181
“Exuberant play”: transversal potential of playground reformation	182
The playground as orgy or Foucauldian theater	187
Headless kings: the subjunctivity of playground songs	192
The playground project: dialectical seeing and the resistance of nostalgia	194
5 Civilizing Subjects, or Not: Montaigne’s Guide to Modernity, Agamben’s Exception, and Human Rights after Derrida	203
Anna Klosowska & Bryan Reynolds
Hunt, Rancière, Agamben on rights of man	205
Agamben trails Aristotle: “natural” slavery defined as deficit of logos	219
Eaten, not conquered	222
Montaigne, literacy/ logos , poststructuralism	229
Simon Marion’s literacy/ logos , “discourse of reason” and Agamben’s “decision on the humanity of the living man”	235
Effects of multimedia literacy in the expanding New World	243
Afterword: Subjects Matter	262
Gary Genosko
Glossary of Transversal Terms	272
Index	290