

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xi
Foreword by Donald H. Reiman	xiii

PART ONE

Why Study Textual Editing and Criticism	3
Text Technologies and Textual Transmissions	29
Textual Criticism and Kinds of Editions	73

PART TWO

A. E. Housman, from "The Application of Thought to Textual Criticism"	123
W.W. Greg, "The Rationale of Copy-Text"	135
James Thorpe, "The Aesthetics of Textual Criticism"	154
Joseph Grigely, "The Textual Event"	194
Leah Marcus, "The Shakespearean Editor as Shrew-Tamer"	226
G. Thomas Tanselle, "Editing without a Copy-Text"	253
Peter W. M. Blayney, from The First Folio of Shakespeare	281
Randall McLeod, "Gon. No more, the text is foolish."	287
Ralph Hanna, Jr., "Producing Manuscripts and Editions"	333
Charles E. Robinson, "Texts in Search of an Editor: Reflections on The Frankenstein Notebooks and on Editorial Authority"	363

PART THREE

Working with Editions

Jane Austen, from Mansfield Park	387
Daniel Defoe, from Moll Flanders	392
Herman Melville, “Art”	412
William Shakespeare, from King Lear and Othello	418
Emily Dickinson, [“Safe in their alabaster chambers”]	441

Working with Documents

Elizabeth Cary, from The Tragedie of Mariam, the Faire Queene of Jewry	473
Phillis Wheatley, “On the Death of the Reverend Dr. Sewell”	483
Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, from Frankenstein	495
Geoffrey Chaucer, “Truth”	509
Marianne Moore, “Poetry”	554

Glossary	567
Selected Bibliography	577
Credits	589
Index	593