

Contents

PREFACE	ix
PART ONE: NEW WORLDS FOR OLD
I. THE APOCALYPTIC IMAGINATION, SCIENCE FICTION, AND AMERICAN LITERATURE	3
1. Science Fiction	15
2. A Prophecy of America, the Moon, and Mars	26
PART TWO: OTHER WORLDS
II. OTHER WORLDS OUT OF SPACE AND TIME	43
3. Edgar Allan Poe and the Visionary Tradition of Science Fiction	50
4. The Left Hand of Darkness: Ursula K. LeGuin's Archetypal "Winter-Journey"	76
III. OTHER WORLDS IN SPACE AND TIME	91
5. Utopian Fantasy as Millennial Motive and Science-Fictional Motif	96
6. The Means and Ends of Science Fiction	123

PART THREE: THE PRESENT WORLD
IN OTHER TERMS

IV. HUMAN, MORE OR LESS	159
7. The Transformed World of Charles Brockden Brown's Wieland	167
8. Solaris and the Illegitimate Suns of Science Fiction	182
V. IT'S A FLAT WORLD!	203
9. Epoch-Eclipse and Apocalypse: Special "Effects" in A Connecticut Yankee	213
10. New Dimensions of Time, Space, and Literature	233
VI. SOMEBODY UP THERE	261
11. Melville's The Confidence-Man and the Fiction of Science	267
12. Vonnegut's Spiral Siren Call: From Dresden's Lunar Vistas to Tralfamadore	296
INDEX	335