

TABLE OF CONTENTS

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| Acknowledgments   | xi        |
| Introduction  | xiii      |
| 1. From totus Christus to the quadrature: Contexts and prerequisites  | 1  |
| Accidents and substances: Christ's presence in the eucharist  | 1         |
| Manducatio per visum , elevation and the Feast of Corpus Christi   | 3         |
| Temeraria manus : The eucharist under threat   | 7         |
| Seelgerät and memoria : Sacrament houses and the economy of Salvation   | 11        |
| Pinnacles and buttresses: Sacrament houses and architecturalminiaturization   | 12        |
| The visual mediation of real presence: The sacrament house of Our Ladyat Friedberg, a case study                                  | 17        |
| 2. From sacrarium to Chörlein: The origins of architectural host reservation                                     | 25 |
| Architectural host reservation super altare  | 28        |
| Sacrament niches: Mystical thresholds and numinous apertures  | 29        |
| The first sacrament houses and architectural miniaturization around 1300  | 31        |
| Macro- and microarchitectural dialogues: The contribution of Peter Parlerand his artistic circle                                  | 39        |
| Microarchitectural pluralism, I: The sacrament houses of St. Bartholomew inKolín and St. Sebaldus in Nuremberg                    | 40        |
| Microarchitectural pluralism, II: The sacrament houses in the AbbeyChurch of Doberan and the Wenceslas Chapel of Prague Cathedral | 52        |
| 3. Experiments in structure: The great sacrament house, I  | 63 |
| The buttressing tabernacle: Early years   | 64        |
| The Vienna workshop and east central Europe: Hanns Puchsbaum,Jodokus Tauchen and Stefan of Košice                                 | 67        |
| Microarchitectural gigantism in southwestern Germany: Jodokus Dotzinger,Moritz Ensinger and the Eselers                           | 78        |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Eucharistic architecture in the Low Countries and Matheus de Layens' sacrament house at St. Peter in Leuven  | 92  |
| Microarchitectural innovation in the Lower Rhine and Westphalia  | 94  |
| Alternatives to the buttressing tabernacle   | 102 |
| The altar tabernacle at St. Martin in Landshut: Microarchitecture and the altarpiece   | 103 |
| A giant wall tabernacle in Grenoble Cathedral  | 105 |
| The sacrament house of St. Mary's in Lübeck: The art of bronze casting and the further history of the Baltic tabernacle type                       | 106 |
| 4. Plays of ornament: The great sacrament house, II   | 117 |
| The buttressing tabernacle: Unfoldings   | 119 |
| Typological variety on the Lower Rhine   | 119 |
| Astwerk and Bogenstückwerk in southwestern Germany: Lorenz Lechler, Burkhard Engelberg, Stephan Weyrer                               | 126 |
| Pinnacles, bent and correct, in Franconia and Bavaria: Adam Kraft, Erasmus Grasser and the Roriczers   | 144 |
| The Alpine countries: Local versus non-local designs   | 154 |
| Post-Parlerian and Viennese designs in east and central Europe   | 164 |
| Westphalia, East Frisia and the question of serial production: The Bunickmans, the Brabenders and their competitors                                | 172 |
| Flamboyant Gothic in the Low Countries: The Keldermans, Alart du Hameel, Aert van Tricht   | 184 |
| The classicizing tabernacle: Early years   | 188 |
| Tuscan origins: Desiderio da Settignano, Benedetto da Maiano, Andrea Ferrucci  | 188 |
| The Corvinian and Jagiellonian Renaissance   | 191 |
| Early Renaissance in the German lands: Loy Hering, Michael Ostendorfer, Daniel Hopper  | 194 |
| 5. From castellum eucharistiae to dugout armoire: Eucharistic architecture in the provinces                                   | 209 |
| Sacrament niches: Mystic portals and strongholds   | 209 |
| Painted tabernacle facades: Liturgical and iconographical interactions in the work of Thomas of Villach, Simon of Taisten and their contemporaries | 212 |
| Substitute retables and airborne monstrances in Swabia, Baden and Graubünden   | 214 |
| Architectural illusionism and the body of Christ at Salzburg and Deutsch Griffen   | 215 |
| Architectural fantasies and eucharistic image cycles at Thörl and Obermauern   | 217 |
| Microarchitectural experimentation, physical prominence and praesentia realis   | 219 |
| The staggered crown and the altar stipes: Architectural facades  | 220 |
| Diagonal projection: The semi-independent tabernacle   | 223 |
| Tower tabernacles in Swabia, the Alsace and Lower Austria  | 225 |
| Wood, brick and terra cotta: Substitute materials in the area of Backsteingotik and beyond  | 230 |
| From dugout chest to tower tabernacle: Experiments in carpentry  | 231 |
| Profiled bricks and polychromed ceramics: The uses of clay   | 235 |
| Architectural trees: Rural variations on the theme of Astwerk   | 237 |
| 6. Incarnatio, Passio, missa perpetua: The imagery of sacrament houses, I  | 249 |
| Incarnatio : The Virgin Mary as "God's tabernacle"  | 249 |
| Passio : Imagining the tortured body of Christ  | 253 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| The agonies of Calvary   | 254 |
| The Last Supper and the communion of Judas Iscariot  | 255 |
| “The flagellation of Our Lord and the accompanying pranks of the Jews”                       | 257 |
| The Man of Sorrows, the paradox of the hypostatic union and the compassionateVirgin Mary | 259 |
| The arma Christi and the Mass of St. Gregory  | 265 |
| The Cloth of Veronica and the seeable vision of God  | 269 |
| The Lamb and the Pelican: Zoomorphic allegories of (self-)immolation                         | 272 |
| Sacrament houses, the sepulchrum domini and paschal observance                        | 273 |
| Missa perpetua : Vested angels and heavenly music                                     | 278 |
|    |     |
| 7. Umbra, lux, corpus mysticum : The imagery of sacrament houses, II                  | 291 |
| Umbra et lux : Salvific trajectories through time                                     | 291 |
| Biblical typology: The body of Christ in the Old Testament                                   | 291 |
| Hagiographical typology: The body of Christ in the lives of the saints                       | 303 |
| Corpus mysticum : Insiders and outsiders  | 307 |
| Insiders: Patrons and artists  | 308 |
| Outsiders, guardians and marginal dwellers   | 311 |
|    |     |
| 8. “Groß heucheley und spott”: The sacrament house in the age of reformations                | 321 |
| The Protestant Reformation in the Holy Roman Empire and the Swiss Confederation              | 321 |
| Catholic strongholds to the 1560s  | 324 |
| Between Calvinist iconoclasm and the Catholic Reformation                                    | 329 |
|    |     |
| Conclusions  | 347 |
|    |     |
| Appendix A Glossary of architectural terms   | 353 |
|    |     |
| Appendix B Textual sources   | 355 |
|    |     |
| Bibliography   | 369 |
|    |     |
| List of Illustrations  | 409 |
|    |     |
| Index  | 421 |