

Preface and Acknowledgments	ix
Abbreviations	xiii
Note on Transliterations and Translations	xxiii
INTRODUCTION	1
Symptoms and Subjects	1
Seeing through Symptoms	9
The Physical Imagination	19
Rethinking Sōma and Psukhē	29
Telling Stories	37
CHAPTER ONE: Before the Physical Body	41
Daemonic Violence	48
The Seen and the Felt	58
The Boundaries of the Felt	64
Fear and the Visual Field of the Self	69
How Gods Act	73
The Seen Body and Social Agency	76
Interpreting Disease and Practices of Healing	79
CHAPTER TWO: The Inquiry into Nature and the Physical Imagination	84
Depersonalizing Causes	90
Natural Justice	95
Melissus and the Denial of Body	101
A Community of Objects	108
Bodies, Persons, Knowledge	116
CHAPTER THREE: Incorporating the Daemonic	121
Symptoms at the Threshold of Seen and Unseen	126
The Interval	130
Explaining Disease	133
The Dynamics of the Cavity	138
The Automatic Body	142
CHAPTER FOUR: Signs of Life and Techniques of Taking Care	148
The Prognostic Symptom: Forces of Life and Death	150
Fragile Life	156

On Ancient Medicine and the Discovery of Human Nature	162
Embodiment, Knowledge, and Technical Agency	171
Taking Care	177
Shoring Up the Self	182
CHAPTER FIVE: Beyond the Sōma: Therapies of the Psukhē	192
Bodily Needs	196
Psychic Desires	202
Gorgias's Encomium to Helen and Human Diseases	211
Psychic Disorder in Democritus	216
CHAPTER SIX: Forces of Nature, Acts of Gods: Euripides' Symptoms	228
The Polysemy of the Symptom	233
Tragedy and the Interval	239
Euripides' Causes: The Madness of Heracles	242
Euripides' Causes: The Madness of Orestes	246
Realizing Disease in the Hippolytus	252
Daemonic Phusis	260
The Semantics of Suffering	265
Conclusion	275
Bibliography	281
Index Locorum	325
General Index	349