

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	vii
Abbreviations	viii
Preface	ix
1 A Qualitative Framework	1
The political economy of international monetary organization	1
International financial integration: Meaning and implications	5
Trajectories of thought on international financial integration	9
Key dimensions of thought trajectories on international financial problems: Stylized examples	11
2 Economists' Initial Reactions to the Demise of the Bretton Woods System	16
Introduction	16
The case for a new synthetic international money	17
Alternatives to an IFO based on synthetic international money	23
Choosing an IFO post-1971: Broad criteria	32
3 Controversy Over Choice of Exchange Rate Regime	38
A tripolar choice problem	38
An idealized market-determined system for exchange rates	40
Hayek's perspective on currency internationalization and exchange rate regimes	44
Early arguments against intermediate regimes	52
Limiting variability: Cases for intermediate regimes	55
Ronald McKinnon's grand currency reform scheme	65
Conclusion	69
4 Choice of Capital Account Regime: When to Liberalize?	73
International liquidity and creditworthiness issues	73
Why liberalize capital accounts? The sceptical view	76
Sequencing capital account liberalization in a planned reform process	86
Choosing a freer capital account regime	91
Conclusion	99

5	International Financial Crises: Ideas and Policies	101
	Early post-Bretton Woods discussion: The Minsky-Kindleberger framework	101
	Paul Krugman's characterization of international financial crises	106
	Joseph Stiglitz on crises causes and policy responses	114
	Crises from the vantage point of eclectics and pragmatists	121
	Pro-market approaches to crises and crises resolution	127
6	The IMF: Post-Bretton Woods Era Functions and Reform Issues	137
	Introduction	137
	Some models and ideas informing IMF functions	139
	Further doctrinal support for IMF programs and policy	150
	Main criticisms of IMF functions and the tarnished 'Washington Consensus'	155
	The IMF as an international lender of last resort?	160
	Summary and conclusion	168
7	Currency Consolidation and Currency Unions	172
	Introduction	172
	Robert Mundell's ideas on common money in the post-BW era	175
	The theoretical optimum: Proposals for a world currency	181
	The sceptics on currency and monetary unification	187
	Economic integration following monetary unification and the currency consolidation process	196
	Currency consolidation as (ultimately) a market-driven process	199
	Conclusion	204
8	Epilogue	207
	Historical structures in the IFS: The limits of reasoning by historical analogy	207
	Intellectual structures: Why the contest of ideas on the IFS matters	211
	Some typical thought trajectories on the IFS in the post-BW era	217
	Postscript: The IFS and the significance of economists' ideas	223
	Bibliography	225
	Index	243