

Contents

Introduction
The Pleasures and Uses of Sixteenth-Century Poetry	1
Part I 1500–1558. Reading Early Tudor Poetry:
Henrician, Edwardian, Marian	19
1 Voice
The Poetic Style of Character: Plain and Eloquent Speaking	21
2 Perception
The Crisis of the Reformation, or, What the Poet Sees: Self, Beloved, God	43
3 World
The Poet's Ecology of Place: Sky, Sea, Soil	66
4 Form
The Idea of a Poem: Elegy, Pastoral, Sonnet, Satire, Epic	90
5 Career
The Role of the Poet in Society: Skelton, Wyatt, and Surrey	115
Part II 1558–1600. Reading Elizabethan Poetry	139
6 Voice
The Poetic Style of Character: From Plain Eloquence to the Metaphysical Sublime	141

7	Perception What the Poet Sees, and the Advent of Modern Personage: Desire, Idolatry, Transport, Partnership	163
8	World The Poet's Ecology of Place: Cosmos, Colony, Country	185
9	Form Fictions of Poetic Kind: Pastoral, Sonnet, Epic, Minor Epic, Hymn	208
10	Career The Role of the Poet in Society: Whitney, Spenser, and Marlowe	231
	Part III A Special Case	255
11	Shakespeare: Voice, Perception, World, Form, Career	257
	Conclusion Retrospective Poetry: Donne and the End of Sixteenth-Century Poetry	280
	Bibliography	288
	Index	323