

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
List of illustrations	x
Foreword Adam Roberts	xi
Notes on contributors	xv
Introduction Sara Wasson and Emily Alder	1
Part I: Redefining Genres
1 In the Zone: Topologies of Genre Weirdness Roger Luckhurst	21
2 Zombie Death Drive: Between Gothic and Science Fiction Fred Botting	36
Part II: Biopower and Capital
3 'Death is Irrelevant': Gothic Science Fiction and the Biopolitics of Empire Aris Mousoutzanis	57
4 'A Butcher's Shop where the Meat Still Moved': Gothic Doubles, Organ Harvesting and Human Cloning Sara Wasson	73

5	Guillermo del Toro's Cronos , or the Pleasures of Impurity Laurence Davies	87
6	Infected with Life: Neo-supernaturalism and the Gothic Zombie Gwyneth Peaty	102
7	Ruined Skin: Gothic Genetics and Human Identity in Stephen Donaldson's Gap Cycle Emily Alder	116
Part III: Gender and Genre
8	The Superheated, Superdense Prose of David Conway: Gender and Subjectivity beyond The Starry Wisdom Mark P. Williams	133
9	Spatialized Ontologies: Toni Morrison's Science Fiction Traces in Gothic Spaces Jerrilyn McGregory	149
10	The Gothic Punk Milieu in Popular Narrative Fictions Nickianne Moody	168
11	Gothic Science Fiction in the Steampunk Graphic Novel The League of Extraordinary Gentlemen Laura Hilton	189
	Index	209