

CONTENTS

Abbreviations	ix
Introduction	1
Chapter One Herodian Caesarea: The Urban Space	5
(with a Post Script—Proposed map for Straton’s Tower, on pp. 12–13)
Chapter Two The Wall Street, the Eastern Stoa, the Location of the Tetrapylon , and the Halakhic Status of Caesarea Maritima (Interpreting Tosefta, Ahilot , 18:13)	41
Chapter Three On the Proclamation of Caesarea as a Roman Colony	71
Chapter Four Urban Space in Caesarea Maritima in the Late Antiquity	91
(with a Post Script—Caesarea as an Intellectual Center in Late Antiquity, on pp. 114–116)
Chapter Five Several Aspects of Commerce and Economy in Late Antique Caesarea	117
Chapter Six Caesarea in Transition: The Archaeological Evidence from the Southwest Zone (Areas CC, KK, NN)	141
(with an Appendix on the Pottery by Barbara Johnson and Julia Idelson, on pp. 167–176)
Chapter Seven Herod’s Hippodrome/Stadium at Caesarea and the Games Conducted Therein	177
(with an update addendum on an additional carceres and a pre-inaugural arena level, on pp. 202–204)
Chapter Eight The Praetoria at Caesarea Maritima	205
(with an Appendix: The Tariff Inscription, deciphered and translated by Leah Di Segni, on pp. 219–223)

Chapter Nine	Warehouses and Granaries in Caesarea Maritima	225
Chapter Ten	A Chapel of St. Paul at Caesarea Maritima?	237
Chapter Eleven	Four Christian Objects from Caesarea Maritima	249
Chapter Twelve	The Martyrs of Caesarea: The Urban Context	259
Bibliography		283
Index of Ancient Authors and Literary Sources		317
Index of Personal Names		320
Index of Places and People		325
General Index		330
Illustrations		341