

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Remaking Area Studies Jon Goss and Terence Wesley-Smith	ix
Part One: Reshaping Area Studies in an Era of Globalization	1
1. Asia Pacific Studies in an Age of Global Modernity Arif Dirlik	5
2. Remapping Area Knowledge: Beyond Global/Local Neil Smith	24
3. Locating Asia Pacific: The Politics and Practice of Global Division Martin W. Lewis	41
Part Two: Perspectives from Asia and the Pacific	67
4. The Evolution of “Area Studies” in Japan: The Impact of Global Context and Institutional Setting Lonny E. Carlile	71
5. The Development of Asia Pacific Studies: A Case Study of Internationalization in Japanese Higher Education Jeremy Eades	92
6. For or Before an Asia Pacific Studies Agenda? Specifying Pacific Studies Teresia K. Teaiwa	110
7. Institutional Collaborations: People, Politics, Policy Lily Kong	125
Part Three: Asia Pacific Learning Communities	141
8. Traveling Cultures: Tourism and the Virtual Classroom in Hawai‘i and Singapore T. C. Chang, Jon Goss, and Christine R. Yano	146

9. Chinatown and the Virtual Classroom in Singapore and Hawai'i Lisa Law and Jon Goss	164
10. Salaam Mānoa, Aloha Mindanao: Creating a Student-Centered, Real-Time, Virtual Classroom Conrado Balatbat, Hezekiah Concepcion, Gerard Finin, and Ricardo Trimillos	178
11. E-Learning and the Remaking of Pacific Studies: An Evolutionary Tale Peter Hempenstall, Robert Nicole, and Terence Wesley-Smith	196
Epilogue: Remaking Asia Pacific Studies Ricardo Trimillos	211
About the Contributors	225
Index	231