1	Introduction	1
1.1.	Four Centuries	1
1.2.	The Metaphysics of Substance	5
1.3.	Metaphysical Parts	6
1.4.	Sources	11
 Part I. Matter
2	Substratum	17
2.1.	The Surprising Consensus	17
2.2.	The Substratum Thesis	19
2.3.	Arguments for the Ex nihilo Principle	22
2.4.	The Causal Simultaneity Argument: Scotus	27
2.5.	The Conservation Thesis	29
3	Theories of Prime Matter	35
3.1.	The Paradox of Pure Potentiality	35
3.2.	Corpuscular Prime Matter	40
3.3.	The Arguments: A First Rehearsal	47
4	Matter and Extension	53
4.1.	The Simple View	54
4.2.	The Extensionless Parts View	57
4.3.	Accidentally Quantified Matter: Averroism	60
4.4.	Intrinsic Extension: Ockham, Zabarella, Pererius	66
4.5.	The Conservation of Quantity	71
5	Philosophiae Perennes	77
5.1.	A Modest Historiographic Proposal	77
5.2.	The Revival of Atomism	80
5.3.	'Nominalism'	83
5.4.	'Atomism'	88
5.5.	How Descartes Saved Philosophy	92
 Part II. Substance
6	Subjects and Substances	99
6.1.	Substance, Thick and Thin	99
6.2.	Substance Criteria	102
6.3.	Subject Candidates	108
6.4.	Inherence versus Predication	111

7	The Veiled Subject	115
	7.1. Casting Off Naive Empiricism	115
	7.2. Unknowable Form, Unintelligible Matter	119
	7.3. Substance Shrouded: Scotus and Marchia	124
	7.4. Lifting the Veil I: Oresme	130
	7.5. Lifting the Veil II: Cremonini	132
8	Cartesian Substances	135
	8.1. Descartes's Thin Substance	135
	8.2. The Wax Passage	138
	8.3. Substance and Principal Attribute	145
	8.4. Where Transparency Ends	151
9	Lockean Substances	159
	9.1. Substratum as Ordinary Substance	159
	9.2. Locke's Tenuous Metaphysical Commitments	168
	9.3. How Metaphysics Matters	173
Part III. Accidents
10	Real Accidents	179
	10.1. The Holy Grail	179
	10.2. Deflationary Accounts	181
	10.3. The Problem of the Eucharist	185
	10.4. Toward Real Accidents	190
	10.5. Scotus's Univocal Account	194
11	Inherence	200
	11.1. The Realistic Consensus	200
	11.2. Must Accidents Inhere?	204
	11.3. Glue-and-Paste Theories	208
	11.4. Inherence without the Glue: Auriol	213
12	Categories	221
	12.1. The Significance of the Categories	221
	12.2. Category Nominalism: Ockham and Buridan	224
	12.3. Structures: Aquinas and Ghent	229
	12.4. Modest Category Realism: Olivi	235
	12.5. Robust Category Realism: Scotus	239
13	Modes	244
	13.1. Overview	244
	13.2. Modal Realism: Olivi and Oresme	247
	13.3. The Suarezian Model	253
	13.4. The Seventeenth Century	258
	13.5. Cartesian Modes	262
	13.6. Separability	266
	13.7. What Are Modes?	269

Part IV. Extension

14	Quantity and Extension	279
	14.1. Against Quantity: Olivi	280
	14.2. The Seventeenth Century	286
	14.3. Corpuscular Structure as Basic: Ockham	288
	14.4. Body without Extension	293
15	Extension and Impenetrability	300
	15.1. Condensation and Rarefaction: Buridan	301
	15.2. The Co-Location Argument: Francis of Marchia	308
	15.3. Toward a Unified Scientific Account: Suárez	312
	15.4. Solidity	314
	15.5. Impenetrability as a Natural Law: Descartes	316
16	Mind and Extension	323
	16.1. The Material–Immaterial Divide	323
	16.2. All Things Are Extended: Hobbes	325
	16.3. What Exists Must Exist Somewhere	328
	16.4. True Extension: Descartes and More	333
	16.5. Prospects for Holenmerism	339
	16.6. Holenmerism and Immateriality	345
17	Location	350
	17.1. Space and Place	350
	17.2. The Causal Argument for Location	351
	17.3. Intrinsically Extended Minds: Descartes versus More	356
	17.4. Reductive Bodily Location: Ockham and Buridan	362
	17.5. Location as a Mode: Olivi and Suárez	369
18	Entia Successiva	374
	18.1. What Are Successive Entities?	374
	18.2. Are There Any Successive Entities?	380
	18.3. Is the Idea of a Successive Entity Coherent?	384
	18.4. Might Everything Be Successive?	390
	18.5. Permanence and Eternity	395

Part V. Quality

19	Real Qualities	401
	19.1. The Significance of Qualities	401
	19.2. Quality Realism: Ockham	402
	19.3. Anno 1347: Mirecourt and Oresme	408
	19.4. Nicholas of Autrecourt	412
	19.5. After 1347	415
	19.6. Cracking the Ice	418
	19.7. The Argument from Conceivability	422

20	Heresy and Novelty	428
	20.1. Four Centuries of Inquisition	428
	20.2. “A Strange Presumption”	433
	20.3. Dissidents	442
	20.4. The Thaw	449
	20.5. The Disingenuity Problem	453
21	Primary Qualities	459
	21.1. Orientation	459
	21.2. Fundamentals of the Aristotelian Theory	461
	21.3. The Mechanical Affections	469
	21.4. The Crucial Case of Heat	473
	21.5. The New Primary Qualities	481
	21.6. The Intension of the Distinction	485
22	Secondary Qualities	491
	22.1. Big Idea #2	491
	22.2. Revelation	496
	22.3. Scholastic Realism	499
	22.4. Post-Scholastic Realism	503
	22.5. Two Anti-Realists: Galileo and Hobbes	507
	22.6. Equivocal Views: Descartes	512
23	Powers and Dispositions	519
	23.1. Nominal Powers	519
	23.2. Powers in Boyle	521
	23.3. Powers in Locke	526
	23.4. The Explanatory Force of Nominal Powers	529
	23.5. Scholastic Powers	535
	23.6. Real and Occult Powers	540
 Part VI. Unity and Identity
24	Substantial Form	549
	24.1. Form and Essence	549
	24.2. Form and Individuation	552
	24.3. Two Aspects of Substantial Form	557
	24.4. The Physical Aspect	560
	24.5. Doing without Form: Descartes	565
25	Unity and Dualism	574
	25.1. The Plurality of Forms Debate	574
	25.2. Unification Strategies I: Unitarianism	578
	25.3. Generation and Corruption Puzzles	581
	25.4. Dualism and Mind–Body Unity	588
	25.5. Unification Strategies II: Pluralism	591
	25.6. Unification Strategies III: Descartes	596

26	Parts and Wholes	606
	26.1. The Aristotelian's Dilemma	606
	26.2. Extreme Views	610
	26.3. The Mixed View of Potential Parts	613
	26.4. Post-Scholastic Views	619
	26.5. The Singular Existence Thesis	623
	26.6. Partial Forms	630
27	Real Essences	633
	27.1. Metaphysical Chaos	633
	27.2. The Unknown Essence of Things	634
	27.3. Damage Control: The Scholastics	637
	27.4. Natural Kinds	642
	27.5. Anti-Essentialism I: Hobbes and Conway	648
	27.6. The Resilience of Real Essences	652
	27.7. Anti-Essentialism II: Locke	655
28	Permanence and Corruption	662
	28.1. The Scholastic Framework for Substantial Change	662
	28.2. Permanence: Autrecourt	665
	28.3. Weak Permanence: Basso and Gassendi	671
	28.4. Strict Permanence: Gorlaeus and Hobbes	678
	28.5. The Part–Whole Identity Thesis	681
29	Identity over Time	689
	29.1. Identity Made Easy	689
	29.2. Identity Made Hard: Ockham	692
	29.3. Nominal Identity: Buridan and Oresme	695
	29.4. Identity Made Problematic	703
	29.5. Hobbes's Radicalism	705
30	Locke's Nominal Substances	711
	30.1. The Reluctant Metaphysician	711
	30.2. Identity and Essence	715
	30.3. Persistence Candidates	718
	30.4. Parts and Wholes Revisited	721
	30.5. Arguments for Nominalism	725
	30.6. Final Rewards	727
