

■ CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: In the Shadows of Citizenship:
African Americans and Democracy's Alterity 1

PART ONE ■ Version and Subversion: The Auralty of Democratic Rhetoric

- 1 Frederick Douglass's "Glib-tongue": African American Rhetoric and the Language of National Belonging 17
- 2 Merely Rhetorical: Virtual Democracy in William Wells Brown's Clotel 37
- 3 Rhythm Nation: African American Poetics and the Discourse of Freedom 59
- 4 Black and Tan Fantasy: Walt Whitman, African Americans, and Sounding the Nation 80

PART TWO ■ Visuality and the Optical Illusions of National Belonging

- 5 Framing the Margins: Geometries of Space and American Genre Painting 103
- 6 The Spectacle of Disorder: Race, Decoration, and the Social Logic of Space 126
- 7 The Colored Museum: William "Ethiop" Wilson and the Afric-American Picture Gallery 145

Conclusion: Shadow and Act Redux 169

Notes 179

Works Cited 205

Index 225