

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations · ix

Introduction: Toward a History of American Orchestras in the Nineteenth Century · Deane L. Root · 1

I. UBIQUITY AND DIVERSITY

The Ubiquity and Diversity of Nineteenth-Century American Orchestras · John Spitzer · 19

- I.1. Building the American Symphony Orchestra: The Nineteenth-Century
Roots of a Twenty-First-Century Musical Institution
Mark Clague · 25
- I.2. Modeling Music: Early Organizational Structures of American Women's Orchestras · Anna-Lise P. Santella · 53
- I.3. American Orchestras and Their Unions in the Nineteenth Century
John Spitzer · 78

II. THE ORCHESTRA AND THE AMERICAN CITY

Orchestras: Local versus National · John Spitzer · 103

- II.1. Invisible Instruments: Theater Orchestras in New York, 1850–1900
John Graziano · 109
- II.2. Beethoven and Beer: Orchestral Music in German Beer Gardens in Nineteenth-Century New York City · John Koegel and Jonas Westover · 130
- II.3. Performances to “Permanence”: Orchestra Building in Late Nineteenth-Century Cincinnati · Karen Ahlquist · 156
- II.4. Critic and Conductor in 1860s Chicago: George P. Upton, Hans Balatka, and Cultural Capitalism · James Deaville · 175
- II.5. Amateur and Professional, Permanent and Transient: Orchestras in the District of Columbia, 1877–1905 · Patrick Warfield · 194

III. CONDUCTORS, PROMOTERS, PATRONS

Marketing the American Orchestra · John Spitzer · 219

- III.1. Bernard Ullman and the Business of Orchestras in Mid-Nineteenth-Century New York · Bethany S. Goldberg · 225
- III.2. John Sullivan Dwight and the Harvard Musical Association Orchestra: A Help or a Hindrance? · Mary Wallace Davidson · 247
- III.3. The Leopold Damrosch Orchestra, 1877–78: Background, Instrumentation, Programming, and Critical Reception
Ora Frishberg Saloman · 269
- III.4. Gender and the Germanians: “Art-Loving Ladies” in Nineteenth-Century Concert Life · Nancy Newman · 289

IV. AMERICA AND EUROPE

Orchestras: American and European · John Spitzer · 313

- IV.1. “A Concentration of Talent on Our Musical Horizon”:
The 1853–54 American Tour by Jullien’s Extraordinary Orchestra
Katherine K. Preston · 319
- IV.2. Ureli Corelli Hill: An American Musician’s European Travels and the Creation of the New York Philharmonic · Barbara Haws · 348

V. ORCHESTRAL REPERTORY

Orchestral Repertory: Highbrow and Lowbrow · John Spitzer · 367

- V.1. Orchestral Programs in Boston, 1842–55, in European Perspective
William Weber · 373
- V.2. Theodore Thomas and the Cultivation of American Music
Brenda Nelson-Strauss · 395
- V.3. Thinking about Serious Music in New York, 1842–82
Adrienne Fried Block · 435

Afterword: Coming of Age · Ronald G. Walters · 451

Bibliography · 459

Contributors · 479

Index · 481